WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—Hot here, as to weather and discussion. A tariff, with tens of millions for able men involved in one paragraph, arouses genuine interest.

The Government is carrying out a great building program, discarding cheap buildings, hurriedly erected in war.

One of the official buildings, 1000 feet long, more than 500 feet wide, will be among the biggest in the world and cost $17,000,000. In floor space, it is surpassed only by James Simpson's building on the edge of the Chicago river.

President Hoover, in town to stay, no more camp week-ends, works ceaselessly, with amazing concentration, beginning at 7 a. m., throwing a 10-pound medicine ball with friends, of whom about 20 are invited for any morning.

Many doctors would tell the President that such work is not safe for men past 50.

Secretary Mellon says of the President: "No man in that office has ever worked harder, or been more fertile in ideas. But he seems to thrive on it."

Bill Hard, who often joins the medicine ball class and weighs little more than the ball, says the President acts like a man who has accepted a hard job and means to go through.

"A friend," says Hard, "asked the President how he liked it, after Mr. Hoover had been in the White House two weeks. The President, looking at a pile of documents on his desk, replied: 'I think that pretty soon I'll have this job learned.'"

Ramsay MacDonald arrives in about three weeks to talk over armaments at sea. He probably comes prepared to ratify, officially, a program already agreed upon, substantially. He would not want to return with nothing, after Snowden's triumphant round trip to The Hague.

The British, well informed by their separate air department, care little about surface ships for any future war. They know that ships will cut no figure.

But they have 70,000 miles of sea coast to patrol in their empire, their cruisers are really floating forts or police stations, boarding bosses for marines that can be landed when needed, then moved on to soothe the next troubled spot.

If the President would establish an air department, separate from the army and navy, appointing a head engineer, with others under him, all controlled by Engineer Hoover, to develop new air ideas, Uncle Sam might not spend his life copying Germany, Italy and Britain. And we would not worry about warships.

Perhaps the President will do that. Friends say that when he recently saw a news reel of the great, all metal Dornier plane, with 12 engines, able to carry one hundred passengers, he seemed deeply interested.

Professor Hershey, of McPherson College, tells scientists at Minneapolis that genuine diamonds, of superb color, can be made by subjecting ordinary table sugar to a pressure of ten tons to the square inch.

He has produced such diamonds, in his laboratory.

In another laboratory, the Senate, Mr. Smoot is about to prove that he can produce for friends enough money to buy all the diamonds in South Africa, by subjecting ordinary table sugar to a tariff pressure of two cents or so per pound.

THIRD DYING IN ANDOVER COLLISION

Two Locomotives Hit Freight Train Head-on Near the Shawsheen Station

Andover, Sept. 14—Two men were killed and a third was probably fatally injured today when two westbound Boston & Maine railroad locomotives crashed head-on into an eastbound freight train near the Shawsheen Village station.

Blame for the accident was placed on the west-bound locomotive crews by Boston & Maine officials. The locomotives had run for a mile and a half without authority, said the statement of railroads heads.

The freight, drawn by a huge Santa Fe type engine, had 95 cars, many of which were heavily loaded with sand and gravel. It hit the on-rushing locomotives with terrific impact.

The men killed were the engineer and fireman of the first west bound locomotive. Their bodies were buried in wreckage. Workers with acetylene torches were laboring to cut them free.

NEW ENGLAND GETS FREIGHT RATES CUT

Decision of the Federal Board Is Big Relief to the Shippers

At least 10,000 different class freight rates applying to shipments within New England Zone A will be revised downward before November 20 as a result of a decision made by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Telegraphic advice concerning the decision was received today by W. H. Day, manager of the transportation bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The decision constitutes the most important one made in favor of New England shippers and receivers of freight in many months. It will save them many thousands of dollars.

In rendering the decision the Interstate Commerce Commission has upheld the contention of the Boston Chamber of Commerce that the method of applying these class rates in many cases resulted in higher charges than the shippers and receivers of goods should be expected to pay under the rate making formula previously prescribed.

By way of explanation, a zigzag line drawn between Rotterdam Junction and Portland, Maine on the map would, roughly speaking, divide the New England freight Zone A on the south and B on the north.

This line not being straight, it often happens that when a shipment is coming from one point in Zone A to another in Zone A that the shortest route between the two

Margaret Wheeler — Insp. Eagan — Insp. Donovan

Margaret Wheeler, 29, common law wife of Samuel Reinstein, today became "the woman in the case" when Reinstein was shot to death by two gangsters at the Hotel Huntington. He was a New York racketeer, police said. Inspector James Eagan and Inspector Timothy Donovan (in straw hat) shown escorting her to headquarters. (Staff photo.)

MEN WHO ROOMED NEXT TO VICTIM AND WOMAN IN HUB HOTEL WANTED IN KILLING, HUNTED IN N.Y.

Samuel Reinstein, 29, New York racketeer, was shot to death in a corridor of the Hotel Huntington, Huntington ave., today, the sixth victim of New York gang slayings within a week.

Reinstein was killed while his common-law wife, Margaret Wheeler, 29, of Fulton ave., Baltimore, with whom he had been staying in the hotel since July 12, was making a purchase in a nearby drug store.

The slayers made a clean getaway through a rear door of the hotel opening on an alley, taking their weapons with them.

Judge Albert C. Hayden in Roxbury court granted warrants charging murder against Albert J. Stone and John Ross, the names given by two men who had checked out of the hotel last night.

These men occupied the room next to that of Reinstein, having asked to be changed from the fifth floor to which they were assigned on checking in Wednesday without baggage.

After receiving the warrants Inspector Timothy Donovan of headquarters and Sergt. P. Maine of Division 16, took a train for New York, where they had reason to believe they would find the men sought.

Police announced they would hold Margaret Wheeler as a suspicious person until Monday, when a warrant charging her with a statutory offense will be sought. They said they would request heavy bail.

Letters found in Reinstein's effects caused police to announce that he was a New York racketeer, hiding in Boston for fear of his life. They said he was also afraid to return to New York because of the Baumes law.

One of the letters, written by the slain man's brother, Louis, from New York last week, contained reference to one "Chink," who sent assurances to Samuel Reinstein he would not be "knocked off."

Charles Sherman, known as "Chink," was sought by Boston police in February of last year in connection with the murder of Louis Tucker of Hemenway st., who was shot down near the corner of Tremont and West Brookline sts.

Another letter was signed "Joe Cohen," and was written from Sing Sing. The writer inquired as to Reinstein's health and expressed curiosity as to what he was doing in Boston.

Miss Wheeler told Capt. John M. Anderson of division 16 that she had lived with the murdered man as his common-law wife for 15 months and that he was her one and only love.

The only motive she could advance for the shooting was the fact that men in New York were jealous of him because he always had plenty of money. She said he obtained this money in the furrier business, but was unable to furnish his business address.

Clerk Daniel Sullivan of the hotel told police that the two men who are hunted and who registered as Stone and Ross, both from Westminster st., Providence, were undoubtedly New Yorkers, judging from their accent.

CHANGED ROOMS

He said they were assigned to a room on the fifth floor on Wednesday, but on Thursday night told him it was too far up, and asked to be transferred to the second floor. They mentioned rooms 211, 212 and 213 as being acceptable.

Sullivan gave them 209, next to that occupied by the Reinsteins.

Police believe that the two men left the floor for Reinstein in their room, stepping out as he passed the door, and "giving him the works."

From information the police obtained they believe Reinstein was connected with the slot machine "racket" and he was probably "taken" for double crossing some of his associates.

NO GUN ON VICTIM

Yesterday afternoon Stone and Ross were seen diagonally across the street from the hotel, seated in a small roadster bearing New York registration plates, and talking with a third man.

Miss Wheeler told Capt. Anderson she and Reinstein had lived under the name of Mr. and Mrs.

Mussolini Glories in Dictatorship Role

Premier Mussolini addressed the grand assembly of the Fascist party, Fascism's upper hierarchy, in the Venezia Palace this forenoon.

Never as now, said the premier, had he felt all the living actuality of the Fascista doctrine by which the state is centered in one person who is complete master. Some idolators called this a "dictatorship," he said, "and we acknowledge it.

"A dictatorship necessarily is in the political, moral and intellectual face of a man who exercises the dictatorship and in the objects at which it aims."

The premier called grotesque all reports recently circulated concerning the suppression of the Fascist party and said they were circulated by inconsistent people or by vengeful ones.

Shouse Blames G. O. P. for Religious Issue

Blaming the Republican party for the introduction of "religious bigotry and intolerance" into the last presidential campaign, Chairman Jouett Shouse of the executive committee of the Democratic National Committee told Massachusetts Democrats today that the responsibility of Republicans for religious propaganda was admitted by their "flaming evangel," Mabel Walker Willebrandt.

Shouse was the principal speaker at a luncheon held by the Democratic state committee of Massachusetts at the Hotel Statler.

He assailed Republican campaign tactics an dalso made a vigorous attack on the administration's tariff policies. He sharply criticized President Hoover as "willing to accept whatever his party can get away with."

The Republican Shouse said, are "striving to burden the country with a tariff monstrosity that, in many of its provisions, is the most vicious, the most reprehensible, the most unnecessary in our economic history."

NEW YORK RACKETEER SHOT DEAD IN HUB HOTEL BY GANGSTERS

Samuel Harris at 344 East 19th st., New York.

Bearing out the police theory that Reinstein was a racketeer and gunman, Capt. Anderson found in his room and empty shoulder holster. Capt. Anderson found in his room an empty shoulder holster.

According to Medical Examiner Timothy Leary and the police, Reinstein was slain by two men, each of whose bullets found a mark in their victim. One entered his neck about two inches below the left ear while the other followed an upward route in the side of the head, an inch above the right ear.

The shooting occurred in a dark corridor on the second floor of the hotel, and was apparently carefully planned, the gunmen making their escape without difficulty.

"Mrs. Reinstein," when questioned by Capt. Anderson and Inspector James A. Dennessey of the homicide squad, was found hysterical and unable to answer questions.

Later she recovered sufficiently to talk and expressed her willingness to do everything possible to aid the authorities.

She said she was born and brought up in Baltimore, her father being a well-to-do grocer, and had gone to New York about two and a half years ago.

Some 15 months ago she met Reinstein in a New York cabaret and told officers it was love at first sight. The couple began to live together under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harris, and continued this association.

On July 12, she said, they came to Boston principally for a vacation, and she declared she had no knowledge that Reinstein was in fear of his life.

Sergt. Walter French and Special Officer Philip Dodge accompanied her to the hotel to permit her to change her clothing, and she was then to be arraigned in municipal court on a statutory offense.

Meantime, police sought warrants for the arrest of the two men registered in the room adjoining Reinstein's.

Stone was described as being about 23 years old, five feet six inches tall, 148 pounds in weight, of medium complexion and wearing a dark blue suit and soft hat.

Ross was about the same age, five feet six, 150 pounds, wearing a brown suit, much too large for him and a soft hat. Both men were clean shaven and wore their hats pulled down over their eyes.

Sergt. Harry J. Maune of the Back Bay division was sent to New York on a hunt for information.

One letter, to Reinstein's brother, Louis, which contained reference to "Chink," stated in substance: "I saw Chink yesterday and he was asking for you. He told me to tell you not to worry. Everything will be all right. You will not be knocked off."

$1000 ON DEPOSIT HERE.

Capt. Anderson found a bank book showing that about $1000 had been deposited in a Boston bank by Reinstein during recent weeks ago, the balance now being $800, following daily withdrawals.

According to the story pieced together by the police, Reinstein and his wife attended a performance in a Scollay Square theater. After the show they dined and it was after midnight when they reached the hotel. Mrs. Reinstein, according to the police, left her husband at Huntington and Gainsboro st, saying she was going to a nearby drug store. Reinstein entered the hotel alone.

He was seen going through the lobby by Daniel Sullivan, night clerk. He mounted the stairs and walked along a second floor corridor toward Room 210, wherein he and his wife had lived since July 12.

As he neared a double fire door, there, to turn in the corridor, two shots rang out. Reinstein, police say, died instantly.

FLED THROUGH DOOR

Sullivan raced up from the lobby. At about the same time Edward Hall, a bellboy, came from the upper part of the hotel, attracted by the strong smell of gunpowder. He did not hear the shots, he said.

Sullivan found Reinstein lying face down on the floor. In one hand he held a copy of a Boston newspaper. In the other hand was a New York newspaper and the key to his room. On the front page of the New York newspaper a two-column headline was heavily circled with pencil. It read: "Third Racketeer Killed."

Sergt. Dennis Shea and Patrolmen Thomas J. Coffey and Thomas F. Deneby of Station 16, Back Bay, and Lieut. Leo Stephen Gillis and Sergt. William Hearn of the "flying squadron" responded to an emergency call. Dr. Thornton of Commonwealth ave. arrived with the police and pronounced the victim dead.

Lieut. Gillis quickly discovered that the fire door, five feet from Reinstein's body, was ajar. According to hotel officials it is a strict rule that this door be kept closed, but unlocked, at all times.

It was through this door, police believe, that the slayers fled. The door is at the top of a flight of stairs that lead to a small rear door of the hotel. The latter door is connected with bell wires to the clerk's desk, to apprise him when anyone using the wires had been cut. It was discovered.

WARNED BY BROTHER

In back of the hotel is a small alley. According to Lieut. Gillis, the slayers could have taken any one of five avenues of escape, through other alleys as yet unrevealed. Several cars were parked in the alley throughout the night.

Dr. Leary, in searching the man's clothing, found several letters, the contents of which he did not reveal. They were also viewed by the police.

It was announced that there was sufficient information in the letters to show that Reinstein was a racketeer, and that he was hiding in Boston. One letter, police said, was from a brother, Louis Reinstein, in which the victim was told, in substance, "everything will be all right as long as you stay in Boston. Keep out of the way."

Other letters, police said, indicated that Reinstein feared to return to New York because of the Raines law.

Mrs. Reinstein entered the hotel as Sullivan was rushing down to notify the police. When informed that her husband had been shot she raced to his side and vainly tried to revive him. She later collapsed and was treated by Dr. Thornton.

5-POWER NAVAL PARLEY MAY SIT IN LONDON NEXT DECEMBER

U. S. GETS SET TO WELCOME M'DONALD

France, Italy and Japan Are to Join the Move to Cut Sea Strength

London, Sept. 14—It was understood here today that official invitations for the five-power naval limitation conference will be sent from London and that the proposed parley will be held in this city.

Premier MacDonald is closely studying the Admiralty's reaction to the Anglo-American discussions. Well-informed circles believe that, in view of the Cabinet's favorable reception of the Premier's report upon the status of negotiations the Admiralty will not attempt to press its demands "up to the hilt" or make too much open opposition.

"If a Conservative Government had been in power the Admiralty never would have consented to suppression of its demands," said an official. "But it feels it would be a hopeless waste of time to try to go against an apparently united Labor Government.

French Invitation to Parley No Surprise

Paris, Sept. 14 (AP)—Announcement in Washington that France, Italy and Japan would be invited to join Great Britain and the United States in a five-power naval conference in December, was received here with satisfaction, but without surprise.

It had always been expected France would be invited.

Washington Gets Ready for MacDonald

Washington, Sept. 14—The State Department and the White House began today to prepare for the reception of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald when he arrives early in October for a visit to President Hoover.

While neither the State Department nor the British embassy has received any definite word from London regarding the prime minister's announced plans, Secretary Stimson has instructed the division of international conferences and protocols of the department to begin preparations for the visit.

Charles Lee Cook, acting chief of the division, who has had long experience in preparation for such receptions, is in charge. He will submit a tentative plan to Secretary Stimson and President Hoover as soon as possible.

As yet it has not been determined whether MacDonald will be the guest of President Hoover or of Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador.

Japan Wants New 10-10-7 Ratio of Navy Building

Tokyo, Sept. 14 (AP)—Admiral Takarabe, minister of the navy, was quoted in the native press today as seeking a 10-10-7 naval cruiser ratio with reference to Great Britain and the United States and as hoping the impending agreement between the United Kingdom and America would permit this.

The naval minister said the most desirable settlement between the two powers for Japan would be for the British and American governments to fix the limits of their first class cruiser tonnage, permitting Japan to complete its present program and give her 70 percent of the British and American figures.

Seize $10,000 Liquor Store in Milton

Acting on a tip furnished them by State officers, the Milton police today swooped down on what they claim to have been a distributing depot for wholesale bootleggers, supplying contraband liquor to nearly a score of surrounding communities.

The raiders seized more than 700 bottles of assorted wines, liquors, and cordials, all to the value of approximately $10,000.

The house which was searched was the home of Daniel C. Shea, Projecta rd., East Milton. The police found liquor under the beds, in the clothes closets, in the sideboard, in the pantry, and in the cellar, they said.

The captured beverages were of good quality, apparently smuggled into the country from Canada or Europe, according to the raiders. Shea will be summoned to appear in Quincy district court on a charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

The state officers who tipped the Milton police that the Shea place was a supposed liquor storehouse gained their information accidentally while investigating another case, Chief James R. Travers of Milton led the searching party.

BARE FLOGGING IN MILL WAR

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 14 (AP)—It was midnight when Ben Wells, British textile worker and organizer for the National Textile Workers' Union in this section, was flogged, R. B. McDonald, a fox hunter, told Judge Shaw on resumption today of Judge Shaw's inquiry into mob violence of last Monday.

McDonald said he and Forrest Leigh were fox hunting when they saw three cars. They heard noises like men being lashed and went to the automobiles. Leigh looked at his watch and saw it was midnight.

They found three men, two of whom were identified in the courtroom as C. D. Saylor and C. M. Lell. The third, McDonald said, could hardly walk.

Saylor, Lell and Ben Wells were kidnaped by a mob from a Gastonia boarding house. Wells was flogged. The three were released when McDonald and Leigh were heard approaching.

Acting over the protest of the defendants, City Recorder Curry today continued until Monday the cases of eight men arrested Thursday, accused of conspiracy to overthrow the state government.

The defense charged that the continuance was "merely a subterfuge to keep the defendants from performing their constitutional right in attending the communist meeting in South Gastonia today."

SENATE CALLS BIG SHIP MEN

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Senate committee investigating activities of shipbuilding corporations at the unsuccessful 1927 Geneva naval limitations conference decided today to begin its inquiry next Friday with the questioning of officers of the corporations.

The following witnesses were summoned:

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which operates the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company.

C. L. Bardo, vice president of the American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation.

Norman R. Parker, treasure and secretary of the American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation.

S. W. Wakeman, vice president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company.

Officers of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Corporation will be called after these witnesses have been heard.

points goes into a part of Zone B.

In such cases the railroads have been applying the Zone B rate to the shipment, this rate being 10 per cent higher than the Zone A rate. Often as a result of this method of applying the rate a shipment between two points would cost more by going partly through Zone B than it would if a longer route entirely through Zone B had been chosen.

The decision calls for the lowest combination of rates for shipments, that is, even though the shipments pass through both zones the rates shall be made on the basis of the shortest distance between the shipping point and the destination entirely in Zone A. But in cases where this method of figuring would be higher, the rate is arrived at by application of the B scale to a shorter distance through Zone B.

Seek Two Doctors in Death of Woman

Salem police inspectors went to Biddeford, Me., today, to question two doctors in connection with the death of Mrs. Florence Cowles, wife of Dr. Dwight Cowles of Graniteville, who died under the assumed name of Florence Clark in Salem.

After an all night investigation the police stated today that the woman underwent an operation in a rooming house in Biddeford, either on September 8 or the day following.

The police refused to divulge the names of two physicians pending further investigation. The officers said they expected their trip would be productive of results and were confident one of the men to be questioned would probably be taken into custody.

State Detective William Murray of Essex County arrived in Salem today to join the local officials in the investigation. Murray came to Salem on order of Dist. Atty. William Clark.

Following an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Cowles today, Medical Examiner James Simpson announced that he would send the organs in the body to Medical Examiner Timothy Leary in Boston for analysis.

CHINA WRECKS PEACE HOPES

Moscow, Sept. 14 (AP)—Soviet Russia and Nationalist China appear today to be no nearer peace in their bitter controversy about the Chinese Eastern railway than they were two months ago when the conflict began in Manchuria.

Far from advancing the prospects of an amicable solution of operation and control of the important railroad, Nanking's latest note is considered by Russian government officials and by the Moscow press as having definitely wrecked all immediate possibility of peace.

The continuance of anomodic raids by Chinese soldiers on the Manchurian-Siberian frontier is therefore envisaged here.

The newspaper Pravda, official Communist organ, warns Nationalist authorities in Nanking that "however aggressive and provocative may be China's conduct, the laboring masses of the Soviet Union will unanimously support the form and policy of their government and will be ready at any moment to mobilize all their strength for a smashing blow to the Chinese generals and to the imperialists standing behind them."

Pravda accuses Nanking of repudiating pledges made in previous notes and of being guided in its new attitude by interested diplomats of the great powers at Geneva.

Jordan Son-in-Law Dies in England

Word has been received of the death of Arthur Wellesly Foster in Cornwall, England, yesterday. He was 69 years old. Following his graduation from Oxford, he became a world famous traveler and sportsman. He was the son-in-law of the late Eben D. Jordan, founder of Jordan Marsh Company.

Besides his widow, Foster leaves a son, Cuthbert. A nephew, Robert Jordan, and three nieces, Mrs. E. Gerry Chadwick of New York, and Mrs. Albert Hunt and Mrs. William Bentnick-Smith, both of Milton, also survive. The funeral will be held at Brockhampton, England, on Tuesday.

Andasti Helmsman Is Saved by 'Good Luck'

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 14 (INS)—Because of his good luck in laying off for the first time this season, Helmsman Joe Collins, 32 of the ill-fated Andasta, lost on Lake Michigan, told friends he was going to celebrate, it was learned today.

The luck changed Friday the 13th and Grand Haven police picked him up for intoxication. He pleaded guilty before Justice of Peace C. E. Burr and was fined $25 or 15 days. He went to jail because his personal effects including money were aboard ship, he said.

Collins had been on an inland trip visiting friends and hurried back to Grand Haven Sunday, but was so tired he changed his mind the last minute and decided to lay off a few days and rejoin the crew in Chicago.

BABY DYING OF POISON PILLS

Tiny pellets 15 months old Donald Thistle found in the kitchen of his home, 73A Marlboro st., Chelsea, were not candy as he thought, but strychnine tablets. He is now on the danger list at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Donald and his brother, Lester, 3, were left in the house with their grandmother, Mrs. Anton Smith. They climbed up on a chair and seized the pills while the grandmother was in another room. Lester did not swallow any.

FRESH-AIR SCHOOL TO DEVELOP SOUND MINDS IN SOUND BODIES

CLASSES HELD IN OPEN AT MILTON

Study and Rest Periods So Mingled as to Hold Pupils' Interest

What may be the school of the future is seen by educators in the opening this week of the new Fresh Air school connected with the new Collicot school in East Milton, a unit in the Milton public school system.

The novel experiment, begun by Superintendent of Schools Horace F. Turner, with the backing of the Milton school committee, starts with 16 children convalescing from illness or operation, underweight, or otherwise physically handicapped. They have been drawn from other public schools in Milton.

The school, on Edge Hill rd., East Milton, opposite Cunningham park, is located at the edge of a pine wood and is specially designed as a model school. It cost approximately $300,000, exclusive of the site.

The "kiddies" in the model fresh air school do most of their studying in the open. The school building is to be used only on rainy or dark and chill days.

Studies are dropped promptly at 10:15 and the youngsters, well drilled, take a rest period of half an hour on folding cots, tucked in under warm blankets. After the morning rest hour studies are taken up again until noon, when recess is declared and the children file into the classroom for lunch.

The lunch is prepared by a dietician with special regard to proper nourishment, and is cooked in a spick-and-span kitchen convenient to the classroom by a cook experienced in State hospital kitchens.

In the afternoon another rest period is spent with the children again tucked under the blankets. Apart from the hot lunch, a half-pint bottle of rich milk is given each child twice a day.

Half an hour before the main body of the school closes, books in the fresh air school close, portable desks are quickly moved into the class room from the open porch, and the school closes for the day.

Sun-kissed and wind-kissed, with rest hours on their cozy cots, hot lunch and rations of milk, and an atmosphere scented with the perfume of the pine trees close at hand, the children plainly revel in their experience.

They are in charge of Frances Phipps, teacher in the fresh air school section of the Collicot school, the principal of which is Jessie L. Boyd. The children are weighed every week, and a report sent to their parents as to their progress in health.

CHINESE READY FOR FROLIC

Following a parade in Chinatown tomorrow, which will feature a meeting of the Gee How Oak Tin Association, a banquet will be held at Joy Hong Low on Tyler st.

The parade and banquet will mark the opening of a two weeks' celebration for the living descendants of the first emperor, Chung Wah, who comprise the personnell of the society.

The members derive their connection through the children. Chin Wu and Yemm who are said to have settled near Canton in southern China. Chin Bong of Boston is president of the association.

Those invited include Governor and Mrs. Frank G. Allen, Mayor and Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, Edward P. Barry, former lieutenant-governor; J. M. de Almeida, consul for Brazil and Nicaragua; Mrs. Anna Tillinghast, commissioner of immigration for the port of Boston; Mrs. Curtis Guild, Freeman O Emerson and William T. Frary.

Girls Admit They Framed 2 Sailors

Providence, Sept 14—Albert Gagnon of Framingham, Mass., and Arthur Dinsmore of Texas, attached to the Naval Base at Newport, were freed in superior court today of serious charges preferred by two girls. Police told the court the girls had confessed to "framing them" to cover their own misdemeanors.

The girls, Rose Lamoraux, of Lowell and Dorothy Bourque of Woonsocket, may be prosecuted for preferring the charges, which might have resulted in life imprisonment for the sailors.

Hub Bound Ship Burned at Gibraltar

The Ellerman-Bucknall Line steamship Kasama, from Calcutta, Colombo, Tuticorin and Cochin for Boston and New York, which put into Gibraltar with a serious fire in her holds, was reported by cable to be still in Gibraltar.

The cargo, valued at $1,000,000, is badly damaged and the loss will be heavy.

Chicopee Mayor to Seek Re-election

Chicopee, Sept. 14 (AP)—Mayor Henry Cloutier today announced that he seeks re-election for a two-year term, in order that certain policies he has inaugurated may be completed. He has been in office 12 years as alderman, water commissioner and member of the legislature.

Here's a School in Milton That the Children Enjoy It Seems So Much Like Play

Miss Frances Phipps assisting a pupil in the geography class of the open air section of the Collicott school, East Milton.

Two of the special class of 16 youngsters from Milton public schools are shown here taking rest hour. There are two rest periods daily. The novel experiment started by Superintendent of Schools Horace F. Turner starts with children convalescing from illness or operation, underweight—or otherwise physically handicapped.

Every day the pupils of the fresh air school are weighed and reports of their health are sent to their parents. This is a popular feature of the experiment, which, it is expected, in the near future, will be accepted as model everywhere.

2 U. S. BANKERS ACCEPT YOUNG PLAN POSTS

Paris, Sept. 14 (AP)—It was announced today that Jackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of New York, and Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, have accepted the invitation to become members of the organization committee of the bank for international settlements which will be a part of the general scheme of the Owen D. Young reparations plan.

The acceptances of the Americans were transmitted today to the governors of the various central banks of Europe.

Yacht Mayflower to Be Sold Next Month

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—Bids for purchase of the Mayflower, presidential yacht for five administrations, will be opened by the Navy Department Oct. 31.

Because the Mayflower has been a vessel of war, she cannot be resold to any but American citizens. The purchaser almost must agree not to employ her for rum-running.

Bare Legged Tennis Bad for Women

Berlin, Sept. 14—Frau Daisy Uhl, tennis star, says a number of women players have been compelled to cease the bareleg fad; it is bad for women subject to rheumatism because glands when uncovered draw much heat from the body.

Boy Kills Girl, Self, in Childish Spat

Port Angeles, Wash., Sept. 14—A double tragedy that started as a spat between two school children and ended in their death, brought sorrow to the little community of Joyce, west of here, in the forests of the Olympic peninsula.

While riding from their homes in Joyce to the Lyre River school in a bus, Jesse Spurrior, 16, seized a text book from Helen McClaine, 13, and threatened to tear it. Helen protested and complained to the bus driver. The driver made Jesse return the book. In doing so the boy said to the girl

"You'll be sorry for that."

Later Helen and her sister, Leona, 11, were walking through a fern-lined trail in the woods near their home with milk, as was their custom.

About a quarter of a mile from their home the girls were suddenly confronted by Spurrior, who carried a rifle. He fired and a bullet went through Helen's body. She died instantly.

A sheriff's posse found Jesse's body with a bullet hole through the head, about 200 yards from where he had shot the girl.

BIG STORM COST LIVES OF 25

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 14—The bodies of 24 men and a boy who are believed to have perished in the wreck of the freighter Andaste, which went down on Lake Michigan last Monday.

Seamen here believe the cargo shifted in the storm which swept southern Lake Michigan a short time later and caused the ship to break up and sink.

Earl Harrington, a cottager living 10 miles north of Ottawa Beach harbor, told coast guards today of having seen a ship, apparently in distress, a few miles off shore Monday night. A heavy sea was rolling and the ship seemingly was heading toward Ottawa Beach harbor, he said. While he watched, the lights disappeared and wreckage, identified as part of the Andaste, was washed ashore Wednesday.

The fish tug Bertha G. arrived, bringing in wreckage of the Andaste, including the door of the cabin occupied by Capt. Albert E. Anderson, master of the lost ship.

MAINE WOMAN GETS 3 YEARS

Augusta, Me., Sept. 14 (AP)—Mrs. Louise Littlefield, 41, of Albion, today was sentenced to three to six years in State prison on a plea of nolo to a charge of assault with intent to kill her mother-in-law, Mrs. Carrie Littlefield, March 3.

The younger woman has been in State Hospital here for observation since she shot the elder through the head at their home in Albion after a family quarrel. The victim has recovered.

Fred Littlefield, husband of the defendant, was in court when sentence was pronounced, but did not speak to his wife.

1 DYING, 2 HURT IN RUNAWAY CRASH

One youth was dying today and a man and a youth were injured as the result of a collision between an auto truck and a two-horse wagon on the Arlington-Concord highway in Lexington.

The truck skidded and sideswiped the wagon, causing the horses to run away. Most seriously hurt was Philip Garba, 17, of Gladstone st., Everett. He was on the rear of the truck and was thrown out. He was taken to the Emerson Hospital, Concord, with a fractured skull.

Ralph Bullock of Lexington driver of the wagon, was thrown to the road and trampled by his horses. He will recover. He suffered cuts and bruises but had no broken bones.

The third victim was Dominick Rindone, 16, of West st., Everett. He was a passenger on the truck and was thrown out. He was treated for lacerations and a strained back.

The truck was driven by Nicholas Rindone, brother of Dominick. He was not hurt.

KIP AND ALICE SEEK TRUCE

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 14 (INS) —With Alice Jones Rhinelander, dusky bride, reported to have arrived here incognito, and Leonard Kip Rhinelander, her husband, said to be in the vicinity, a meeting was expected here today.

Maj. Phil Rhinelander, father of Leonard, is in Omaha. He denied he would come here to meet his son.

"I hope my boy gets a divorce without another scandalous trial," said the father.

It was reported the young couple had plans to meet here and work out an agreement whereby they may avert embarrassment of another trial.

Suit for divorce was filed in Las Vegas, Nev., last July. An earlier attempt for annulment failed in New York soon after the marriage.

One of the reasons why he should be freed, according to the complaint, was that the marriage caused Kip "great embarrassment." He also inferred that Alice had taken advantage of his "youth and innocence."

Converse Romance Is 'Drifting' to Reno

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service and Boston Evening American.

New York, Sept. 14—After seven years of wedded life the beautiful Marion McCall Converse is ready to entrain for Reno to sever the bonds that bind her to C. M. Converse, millionaire sportsman and clubman.

The granddaughter of the late John A. McCall, social registerite and one-time president of the New York Life, revealed that she and Converse came to a parting of the ways six months ago. There can be no reconciliation, she said. Converse, the grandson of Edmund G. Converse, founder and former president of the Bankers' Trust Company is now in Hollywood. He inherited a fortune of $30,000,000 from his grandfather.

Asked to name the original cause of the rift she said: "Perhaps the best thing to call it is just a natural drifting apart."

The couple have no children.

Last month when George P. Converse, New York banker, went west to marry Anita Stewart, the movie star, he was accompanied by his brother, C. M. Converse.

After the wedding of George P. Converse and Miss Stewart it was noticed that C. M. Converse threw himself with much vigor into the social life of the movie colony.

Mrs. Converse was the dashing Marion Joseph McCall, daughter of Ballard McCall and was educated at Marymount College, Tarrytown, N. Y. Her wedding to St. Joseph's Church, Garden City, L. I., November 9, 1922, was one of the social events of the season.

Hoover's Son Selects Quarters at Harvard

A single room, known as a study-bedroom, one of the most inexpensive in the whole university, was that chosen by Allan Hoover, son of the President of the United States, for his quarters at the Harvard School of Business Administration.

According to college authorities, most students occupy three rooms in company with another student roommate. The rooms consist of two bedrooms, a study and a bath. But in Mellon Hall, which overlooks the Charles river, Allan Hoover will have only one room, which he will occupy alone.

WOODS VICTIM IS MYSTERY

Worcester, Sept. 14—An autopsy today failed to clear up the mystery of the death of the unidentified man found in the Lunenburg woods by grape pickers.

Medical Examiner Frederick H. Baker announced that he found no evidence that the victim was strangled, as police at first believed. A bandana handkerchief, knotted around the neck of the body, was too loose to have caused choking, Dr. Baker said. He could discover no fractured bones, no bullet wounds and no knife cuts.

The body was in such condition that the cause of death could not be established. Elaborate bridgework in both upper and lower jaws was hoped to furnish a clue which might lead to identification.

The dead man wore a double-breasted blue serge suit, a black shirt and a black necktie. He had on no underclothing. A Boston-Ayer timetable was in his pocket. There was no evidence of robbery, according to police.

Freshman Camp Is Opened by B. U.

The first freshman camp to be held by Boston University's College of Liberal Arts got under way last night at Nickerson field, Riverside, when a small group of men who will be first-year students of Boston University next week, accompanied by three seniors of the College of Liberal Arts opened a three-day program of sports, banquets and discussions.

Pres. Marsh was on hand to greet the newcomers. He gave the men a short talk on the history and ideals of Boston University and urged them to carry on the tradition of the College of Liberal Arts.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

THE game sensation that has swept America. The rules are simple. You are given, for instance, the word "tear" to unscramble with the letter "h." The Anagramble is "heart." Similarly, to unscramble the word "link" with "s" the Anagramble is "slink."

Remember, you cannot make an Anagramble with a plural—"links" would be wrong. You have to change the complete meaning of the word—"slink" is therefore correct. Nor can you make a different tense of word. For instance, to unscramble "read" with "s" you cannot make it "reads."

You must change the complete meaning. The Anagramble, therefore, is "dears." Now try your hand at these Anagrambles.

(1) STATIC—Unscramble it with a C.
(2) DRAINS—Unscramble it with an E.
(3) TEASE—Unscramble it with a D.
(4) MEANT—Unscramble it with an H.
(5) ASTER—Unscramble it with an R.

MORGAN FIRM CONTROLS N. Y. POWER SITES

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—J. P. Morgan and Co. and associates in the Niagara-Hudson Power Corporation today controlled nearly all the important waterpower sites in New York State as a result of the purchase of the Frontier Corporation from the Mellon interests, thereby Electric Co. and the Du Ponts.

Acquisition of the Frontier properties gives the Niagara-Hudson group power sites on the St. Lawrence river capable of developing 2,400,000 horsepower.

Previous holdings of the Morgan interests represented 1,700,000 horsepower. The Frontier Corporation owns riparian rights and islands adjoining the Long Sault rapids on both the American and Canadian sides and also stock of the St. Lawrence River Power Co., Ltd., of Cornwall, Ont.

The original application of the Frontier Corporation for permission to develop the Long Sault power became one of the leading issues in the 1926 campaign when Governor Smith, who opposed the project, named a candidate for re-election against Ogden L. Mills, now under secretary of the treasury. The application was later withdrawn.

Speed Demon Held in Arlington Robbery

A moment after a charge of larceny of an automobile had been placed on file and Bartholomew Costa was ready to leave Charlestown court, an Arlington police officer arrested him on charges of breaking and entering today.

Costa, instead of returning to his home, on Elm st., Charlestown, was taken to the Arlington police station and again locked up pending action in the Third District Court, Cambridge. Costa is alleged to have entered the home of Frank Palmer, in Arlington and to have stolen wearing apparel, a gun and money.

State Employes to Hear Allen Speak

Acceptance by Governor Allen of an invitation to speak to the members of the Commonwealth Service Association and their friends who attend the annual outing and banquet at Norumbega Park, Saturday, September 28, was declared at a meeting in Tremont Temple to be an indication of future cooperation of State House executives and department heads with the organized employes.

Three Turn Robbers to Get Money to Buy Confetti

New York, Sept. 14 (INS)—Three men turned robbers so they could buy more confetti for the Coney Island Mardi Gras.

Joseph Lunera, John Bologna and Paul Verbino, prisoners today, confessed they robbed a cab driver to get confetti money, and when they needed more set out to find another victim.

The three were arrested after a police chase in which 25 shots were fired and Lunera, one of the prisoners, wounded.

VIRGINIA AYRES BRIDE OF JOHN BISHOP IN COHASSET

Boston Society Well Represented at Fashionable Wedding of Helen Lodge in Washington

Frances Lord Seymour Weds Today in Far Rockaway, L. I., Ceremony

MISS VIRGINIA AYRES, one of society's loveliest daughters, today became the bride of John Bishop of Boston at a fashionable noon wedding in St. Stephen's Church, Cohasset. A large contingent of the smart set witnessed the ceremony at which the Rev. Charles C. Wilson officiates. Tall and slim and blonde is this young favorite whose conventional satin gown and bridal veil admirably brought out her good looks. She was attended by Mrs. William C. Cox (Jessie Bancroft) of Cohasset, and Mrs. Francis La Farge of New York as matrons of honor; as other bridesmaids were Mrs. Arthur Scrivenor (Lorraine Liggott) of New York, Miss Evelyn Royce of Dedham, Mrs. Sherwin C. Badger of New York, and Miss Rachel Jackson of Manchester. H. R. Bishop of Middlebury, Va., attended Mr. Bishop as best man, and the ushers included Ransom W. Hodges of Marblehead, William C. Cox of Cohasset, Ellis Humphreys of Bedford, N. Y., Ogden Driggs and Francis W. La Farge of New York, Dudley Clark, Jr., of Boston, J. Wilson Lloyd, Short Hills, N. J., and Gardner Cox of Cambridge. A large wedding reception was held at Rockayr, home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Ayres, following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Bishop are to live in a new home under construction at Cohasset following their honeymoon trip.

IN WASHINGTON, D. C., Miss HELENA LODGE, granddaughter of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, becomes the bride of M. Edouard De Streel, first secretary of the Belgian embassy, in an important society wedding today. The wedding is being solemnized at the Lodge residence on Massachusetts ave. before a brilliant assembly of official and social personages. Many Boston relatives and friends are attending the ceremony, among them Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge (Emily Sears) and Mr. and Mrs. John Davis Lodge, the former Miss Francesca Braggiotti of Brookline.

BOSTON IS ALSO INTERested in the nuptials of Miss Frances Lord Seymour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orgen Seymour of New York, and Donald Marcy Beals, whose wedding takes place today at St. John's Church, at Far Rockaway, L. I. This is one of the very elaborate ceremonials of the season with three distinguished divines officiating, The Rt. Rev. Ernest M. Stires, Bishop of Long Island; Rt. Rev. Thomas F. Davies, bishop of Connecticut, and the Rev. Francis Urbano. A wedding breakfast at Sosiego, the summer estate of the bride's parents, follows the ceremony. Mr. Beals gave his bachelor dinner last Saturday evening at the Harvard Club.

MISS JANE BANCROFT, the sub-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft of Cohasset, makes her bow to the horse loving set as chairman of the committee arranging the Passet Gymkhana and Junior Horse Show for the benefit of the Children's Hospital. The classes outlined by this capable young manage shows her familiarity with all things pertaining to staging an interesting event, the date of which is set for Monday, September 16, at 2. Children of members of the Cohasset Horse Show Association, Scituate Horse Show Association, Whitney Woods Association and the residents of Cohasset and Duxbury schools in the vicinity are all invited to enter their horses, without charge, for the 12 riding and driving classes. Among the features will be an egg and spoon race, a potato race, musical chairs and a balloon fight. The show is to be held on the grounds of the Cohasset Horse Show Association on the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE engagement of Miss Edith Ames to Cameron Randolph Beard of Nashville, Tenn., has been made by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Annin Ames of New York and Essex Fells, N. J. Forest Fires Spread on Pacific Coast

San Francisco, Sept. 14 (AP)—Forest fires were burning aggressively in northern California and western Oregon today. Weary firefighters were spread out along three sides of the town of Ukiah, 75 miles north of here, holding back a blaze which had threatened to invade the city limits. The fire caused considerable alarm until last night, when a wind which had been driving it toward the town died down.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Ireland May Halt Plan for Tariff Truce

Geneva, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Irish Free State today tossed the first stone into the machinery being assembled for the limitation of European tariffs looking toward a European confederation of states.

Prof. John O'Sullivan, speaking before a league committee, declared his country could not undertake to participate in a two-year tariff truce proposed by the French and British.

The Saorstat already has set up a commission to study the demand for increased tariff to which the Irish government is pledged if the commission reports favorably, said O'Sullivan.

"Asking us to relinquish tariffs is equivalent to asking us to commit industrial and economic suicide," he added.

W. D. Euler of Canada reserved for his government entire freedom of action regarding the proposal for a tariff truce. The Canadian cited impending tariff developments with other countries and the possible consequence of the necessity of seeking other markets for Canadian products.

Part of the League assembly's work today was to carry through to final stage, so far as the League is concerned, the protocol for adhesion of the United States to the World Court and at the same time adopt the protocol for the revision of the statutes of this tribunal.

Following adoption of the protocol framed by Elihu Root and other jurists, procedure will be to open the agreement for signature by representatives of member states. Ratification by governments will be the next step.

ment in more efficient forest protection.

Disappearing forests explain diminishing rainfall. The forest area, once 822,000,000 acres, is reduced now to 100,000,000 acres.

More than 700 rivers and streams, shown on old maps, can no longer be found. Under normal conditions, 80 per cent of rainfall would be absorbed by trees and other vegetation, reevaporated, and returned to earth, in rain.

For lack of trees, the water rushes into streams and rivers, washing valuable top soil away, and out to sea. That is one of 1,000 things the President is asked to take up, all at once.

He has taken it up, through Secretary Hyde, of the Department of Agriculture. The difficulty is to fight fires on mountain ridges, where no water is available, and fire goes roaring through thousands of acres in a day.

Scientists should concentrate on chemical warfare against fire with airplanes.

Nomination papers of Mayor Henry F. Beal of Waltham, as a candidate for re-election, were put in circulation in that city. Former Mayor Patrick J. Duane and Councillor-at-large Martin F. Carney also have papers for the mayoralty nomination in circulation.

Baby Carriages Quit Rhine With British

Koenigstein, Germany, Sept. 14—Today was packing day for British troops in this Taunus Mountain spa, to which has fallen the happy lot of being the first Rhineland point evacuated by the British under the agreement reached at the Hague reparation conference in August.

Monday will be moving day. Four hundred officers and men are stationed here, and they will be transported in groups so that Koenigstein will be completely freed of foreign occupation by Sept. 29.

Perhaps the staunchest supporters of Anglo-German rapprochement will prove to be the international marriages, estimated at about a hundred here, contracted between British officers or privates and German frauleins. These German fraulein have been studying English hard and are looking forward with expectation to the country of their adoption.

Officers in charge of the troops say these marriages have made it a bigger problem to move the families than the soldiers, and that the transportation of baby carriages is a more difficult affair than that of military equipment.

For Koenigstein evacuation means the disappearance of foreign flags and also that some 65 houses can be restored to their owners, thus relieving a housing shortage.

GIRL'S FINGERS CRUSHED OFF

Her hands caught in a cutting machine, Loretta Delroy, 20, of 127 Bridge st., Newton, lost seven fingers today while working at the plant of the International Gum Co., 294 Pleasant st., Watertown.

She was working on a gum scoring machine and her hands became caught in the blades of the cutter. Both hands were almost severed at the finger joints. She was taken to the Cambridge Hospital, and, although suffering from shock, will recover.

SMUGGLE RUM BY 'SUB' CABLE

Detroit, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Detroit News today says a submarine cable has been used by rum runners to transport cargoes of liquor from Canada into the United States. The cable, it says, was discovered and dismantled by border patrol inspectors.

t stretched from Mud Island in the Detroit river to the American shore at Enore.

"Employing a method approaching in ingeniousness the much discussed by mythical 'pipe line' into Canada," the newspaper says, "the runners operated a sled that carried from 15 to 20 cases of liquor a trip along the 500 foot cable, while customs crews sped along an apparently inactive waterfront and reported 'all quiet' in the rum war."

The cable, customs officials said, is believed to have been one of two in use on the river. An investigation is being made to discover the second.

Find U. S. Soldiers Bodies in Chateau

Rheims, France, Sept. 14 (AP)—Several bodies, believed to be of American soldiers killed during the great war, were found today by workmen rebuilding the Chateau Des Grandsbois near here. The workmen notified the authorities without further disturbing the bodies, so that the number and identification remained uncertain. The men are sure, however, that cartridges and buttons found beside the bodies are American.

New York, N. Y., Sept. 14 (INS)—Radiant, Georgette Cohan, daughter of George M. Cohan, noted theatrical producer, has returned from abroad where she journeyed to regain her health.

HOLD WOMAN IN ASTOR FRAUD

Berlin, Sept. 14 (AP)—A former nurse, Bertha Kirchner, today was under sentence of 10 months' imprisonment after her attempt to get some of the Astor millions for 110 members of the family of Johann Emmerson, a German butcher, who emigrated to America in 1775.

Fraulein Kirchner was charged with attempting to defraud the Emmerich clan by pretending to be able to realize their claim for $700,000,000 against the Astors. The woman was arrested as she was leaving for the United States to carry out her case.

The Emmerich heirs claim their ancestor emigrated to America and founded a shipping business with Jacob Astor, to whom Emmerich is claimed to have willed one-third of his fortune, while the other two-thirds were to be held by the Astor family for a period of 90 years.

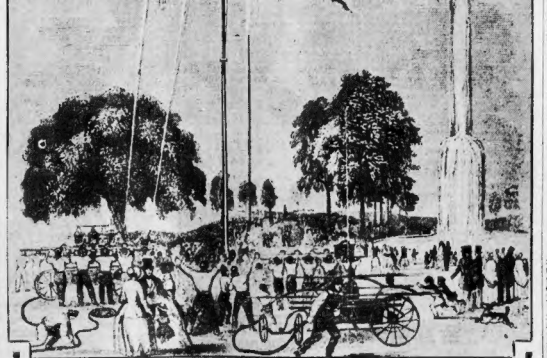
Old Boston in Pictures—No. 56



"BREAK her down!" was a familiar cry in Boston in the middle of the 19th century. It was the battle-cry of the red-shirted hand-engine foreman. Above is shown a picture of the big "hand-tub" muster on Boston Common in May, 1851, presented through the courtesy of the Massachusetts Historical Society. One of the feats of this competition was to throw a stream of water over the top of the flag pole. Before the muster ended many of the spectators were drenched.

Miss Marjorie Morrill was among the guests at the al fresco wedding repast served at Brookfield Farm, Hamilton, following the nuptials of Miss Elizabeth Moulton and Richard Hubbard, which was a brilliant social event on the North Shore recently.

Bad Weather Doesn't Worry Hub Airmen

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

The fog may blow in in billows; the wind may howl around the 40-mile-an-hour mark; the rain may come down in sheets, but the work of commercial aviation goes on just the same. When Old Man Weather gets nasty and throws some of his bad weather at the boys, they start right out to scare up new business.

Witness the fact that Skyways sold a Moth to S. C. Davenport, of Rutland Vt., and Dennison Airport Corp signed up six new students. Then comes Leo "Skip" Tracy, of the Curtiss sales force, with a couple of limited commercial flying courses sold to prospective fliers. And that's how a foggy day is spent at the Boston airport.

Dennison tells us that with the coming of the fall season, when the air is crisp, clear and steady, the boys who are trying to learn to fly, make up their minds that now is the time, and put their John Henry's right on the old dotted line. Six students, and a lot of cross-country flying, makes the Dennison total of hours a little more than 17 for one of the worst weeks in local flying.

The feature of Dennison's report is that Roger Swan, who has been flying at Nantucket during the summer, has taken a position with the Maine Airplane Transport Corporation, flying new Waco purchased from Dennison. "Les" Sheafy, pilot for Dennison, recently delivered a Wright "225" J-6 motored Waco from the factory to the Maine company, which operates at Stroutwater Airport, Portland.

After serving as pilot for the marine division of Curtiss at Rockland, Me., all summer, Harold Moon left his position to go home to Philly, and join his folks in a tour of Europe.

Before he shoved off, Harold said the service facilities in Maine are the best on the New England coast for seaplane work and not a day goes by when all the Ireland boats are not out and taking people up for pleasure rides.

Crocker Snow states that a special three-place open cockpit Stearman, powered with a Wasp 425 horsepower motor, has been built for Bob Gross of New Haven, formerly of Boston. This ship, with an N. A. C. A. cowling around the motor, will be good for a speed of over 150 miles an hour. Delivery is expected within 10 days, and as soon as Gross gets it he will journey up from New Haven to give the boys a real treat.

The head of the Curtiss Co. in New England, W. F. Barthuiomew, went down to New London with Harold Crowley in the Ireland, making the trip in a little less than an hour. The all-water route was followed, even to each twist of the Cape Cod Canal.

And Frank C. Crowley's "Lucky 13" carried him through on the 13th of the month.

Don't let anybody tell you there isn't something in this "13" stuff. Ask Frank.

Pursue Father and Girl to Australia

Los Angeles, Sept. 14 (AP)—The reported flight of Gerald C. Murphy, former British army colonel, to Australia with his 7-year-old daughter, whose custody had been awarded to Mrs. Mumby with a divorce, occupied the attention of Los Angeles officials today.

Dist.-Atty. Burch Fitts cabled Brisbane requesting that the child be held for deportation, and counsel for Mrs. Mumby asked that felony charges be filed against Mumby.

LOWELL FLIER IS HURT IN CRASH

Preston, Ct., Sept. 14 (AP)—A forced landing in pasture land here today resulted in critical injuries to Pilot Carl Mitchell, flying a new Gypsy Moth cabin plane from Lowell, Mass., to New York.

The plane circled the stown for a few minutes before Mitchell landed and then came down on rough, muddy ground and turned over on its nose. Mitchell was taken to Backus Memorial hospital at Norwich, where it was believed he was suffering internal injuries. He was rushed to the operating room on his arrival at the hospital.

The plane was badly damaged. The propeller was snapped off and the wings ripped.

The cause of the forced landing is not known as Mitchell was unconscious when picked up.

'Mind Bookkeeping' Fails, He Loses Cash

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 14 (AP)—Forgetfulness has cost David Herschfield, grocer, money which would have wiped out a bad debt.

A Mrs. McCarthy of Glendale, Cal., wrote to him that she left an unpaid bill 28 years ago, and asked how much it was that she might pay. David cannot remember the amount.

BOSTON DAY by DAY

By FRED TOYE

THERE HAS BEEN much discussion of the various activities planned for the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary celebration next year. Meetings have been held, committees appointed, and the legislature and city and town councils have passed or opposed measures for the appropriation of funds for furthering the celebration plans. Occasional items have appeared in the news papers, and prominent citizens have dispensed fervid oratory with regard to the historical and esthetic significance of the occasion. The man in the street wonders what it is all about. Why is Massachusetts celebrating during 1930? What will we celebrate? What form will the celebration take?

IN THE FIRST PLACE, a tercentenary, we are told is the three hundredth anniversary of an occasion of family, national or religious importance. With regard to Massachusetts, the three hundredth anniversary in question occurs in June. During that month, in the year of grace 1630, John Winthrop arrived in Salem aboard the Arabella, bearing the charter which transferred the government of the colony from England to Boston. Instead of celebrating the occasion for a day or for a month, sponsors of the Tercentenary conceived the idea of making the entire 12 months of 1930 a sort of jubilee year. Family reunions will be held; sites of historical interest will be prepared for the reception of millions of visitors; permanent exhibits will be encouraged; special festivals, pageants and other amusement features will be advertised throughout the land; Massachusetts will hold open house, permitting visitors to view their factories and products; municipalities throughout the State will hold local celebrations, and churches will find appropriate ways of signalizing the event which marked the beginning of a new concept of religious liberty. It is significant that the year 1930, in addition to being the 300th anniversary of the arrival of the Massachusetts charter, is also the 1900th anniversary of the founding of the Christian church.

THE MEN and women responsible for the successful conduct of the Tercentenary have a stupendous task on their hands. The short period of preparation, and the vast area which it covers, make a task which is almost superhuman. There is scarcely a haulm in the state which does not have its own special historical significance. While local committees may be relied upon to conduct their own observances, yet the activities of the entire state must be co-ordinated and news of the preparations must be broadcast throughout the nation. At the present time, Boston is observing the festivities of three groups, working more or less co-operatively. There is an official State Commission, the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, Inc., and the Mayor's Committee.

THE MAJOR WORK in connection with the celebration is in the hands of the Massachusetts Bay Tercentenary, Inc. This is a semi-public organization of publicity-minded citizens working in groups and actuated by altruistic sentiments. It is their job to gather the funds necessary for the successful conduct of the celebration, to co-ordinate the work of the various local committees, to plan outstanding events and foster permanent memorials and to get the subject to the attention of the entire world.

A MATTER of no little concern to the Tercentenary committees is the question of housing visitors. It is anticipated that 10,000,000 outsiders will visit Massachusetts during the year, and to speak of the invasion will center in Boston and will occur during the vacation months. Despite the housing facilities in Boston during the summer are more than ample in ordinary years, due to the annual exodus of our own people, yet the sudden descent of even a million visitors at one time will inevitably swamp hotels, rooming houses and auto parks.

ANOTHER work which will be pushed vigorously is the appointment of Massachusetts committees throughout the United States. In every possible community, former citizens or descendants of citizens of Massachusetts, or former students at Massachusetts institutions of learning, will be asked to serve as local representatives of the Tercentenary committee. They will act as outlets for information regarding the celebration and will organize groups of visitors.

ROUND TABLE WILL DISCUSS INTOLERANCE

The Calvert Round Table, a seminar to discuss the causes of religious and social intolerance, was the subject of an Exchange club luncheon.

P. A. O'Connell, president of E. T. Slattery Co., outlined the round table, which will be similar to one held recently at Columbia University.

The Boston meetings will be held at Harvard. President A. Lawrence Lowell has extended an invitation to the round table to meet at the Cambridge institution.

"The Calvert Round Table," Mr. O'Connell said, "is a body of about 100 laymen, representatives of various religious groups, who are profoundly concerned about the rekindling of intolerance which has been manifested so widely during the past few years. We believe that no greater disaster could befall the republic than the division into bitterly antagonistic religious groups; that the sincere spiritual convictions of everyone are entitled to universal respect, and that religious freedom guaranteed by the constitution must be maintained.

"Our object is to uphold the freedom of worship guaranteed by the constitution, to remove religious prejudice, to foster among all our people, of whatever religious belief, respect for each others sincere convictions, mutual confidence and good will.

"Therefore, we have organized a seminar which will frankly, openly and fairly discuss, in a spirit of friendliness, the cause of religious and social intolerance and the methods whereby understanding may be minimized and eliminated."

The officers of the round table, besides Mr. O'Connell, are: Ralph Adams Cram and Carl Dreyfus, vice presidents; Walter F. Downey, secretary, and Frederick A. Carroll, treasurer.

PROSPERITY TO BE SHOWN

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—Dr. William T. Foster, director of the Pollak Foundation for Economic Research, today submitted a recitement that gains in real wages the last few years of those who have had jobs may be largely wholly offset by the losses of those who have not had jobs.

He made the statement before the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass., August 29.

"To attribute the whole of wage earnings as a whole in our recent prosperity, it is necessary to take account of changes in the numbers unemployed," said Dr. Foster today.

"The man who has no job gains little comfort from reading about the gains made by the man who has a job.

"We shall not know whether wage earners as a whole have had any share whatever in the prosperity which seems revealed in stock market reports until present fragmentary and misleading statistics are replaced with comprehensive and reliable data.

"Unfortunately one important step towards obtaining the needed data will be taken in the next census."

Wife Invited to Her Husband's Wedding

New York, Sept. 14 (INS)—Mrs. Kathryn Wilson, wife of the wealthy automobile agent who sold the playboy Locke brothers the expensive foreign cars they turned over to Peggy Joyce and other Broadway celebrities, has sued for separation. She said her husband's suspicions were first aroused when she received an invitation to her husband's wedding to another girl.

ARREST SLAYER SUSPECT HERE

A two-month search for Jean Gray, alias William C. Taylor, alleged New Orleans street car strike murderer, ended today in Boston with the arrest of Gray by Inspectors William Pinkham and Hazen Chalmers of the Hanover st. police station.

Gray, the police say, shot and killed one of the strike-breakers during a severe riot at the Canal st. car barns in New Orleans in July.

All efforts of the police to find any trace of Gray had failed. Acting on information that a man answering Gray's description was in the North Station and that he was armed with a gun, led the police to their quarry today.

Questioned at the Hanover st. police station today, Gray admitted that he was in New Orleans in July and during the period of the car strike. He denied emphatically that he had taken part in the labor difficulties or had shot anyone.

He is being held pending arrival of the New Orleans police officials.

Whalen Again Scores Prohibition Forces

New York, Sept. 14 (INS)—Charging the "complete breakdown of the federal prohibition machinery in New York city," Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen today fired another stinging broadside in his correspondence duel with Prohibition Administrator Maurice E. Campbell.

Whalen declared that 93 per cent of all prohibition prosecutions begun in the greater city were dismissed by federal men, but by the police department.

Four Die in Plane

Chartres, France, Sept. 14 (AP)—An army airplane burst into flames today on a training flight and crashed to the ground. Its four occupants were killed.

BIG MACKEREL HAUL COMES TO BOSTON

Most of the mackerel brought in to the Boston Fish Pier today were caught off the Maine coast.

The St. Rita reported the heaviest catch. She carried 45,000 pounds of tinkelers. The Lista caught 35,000 pounds of tinkers.

The steamer Fiona brought in 70,000 pounds of haddock and 4500 pounds of mixed fish. The steamer Patrick J. O'Hara reported with 80,000 pounds of haddock, 1500 of large cod and 3000 of medium cod, together with 12,000 pounds of mixed fish. These catches were sold at the Boulgi channel.

From Ripe shoals the John Martin brought in 11,000 pounds of mixed fish. The rest of the haul was light.

While Gloucester reported fairly heavy catches there was little doing at Provincetown and Portland. Large cod are bringing 5 to 5½ cents per pound, while market cod demanded 3 to 5 cents. Haddock ran 5 to 5½ cents per pound.

Swordfish was worth 23 to 24 cents, large mackerel 9 to 21 cents and tinkers 5 and 6 cents. Pollock, hake and cusk were bunched at 3½ to 4 cents.

SHOUSE TALKS TO DEMOCRATS

manded. "Not a word since that message in which the President asked Congress that tariff changes should be limited to those industries that the depression resulting in unemployment.

"We have heard from self-appointed interpreters, who continue to assert that Mr. Hoover will not stand for a wholesale tariff raid. But what sort of chief executive is it who would sit back and permit his own Congress to make a shameful hash of its whole session—the session he called for a specific purpose, farm relief—when by a word he could direct the flow of legislation into any channel he desired?"

APOLOGISTS FOR HOOVER

Shouse said that apologists for Hoover "who wish the country to believe that the President is waiting to smash the undefensible tariff measure with a veto, are painting a picture of an executive so feeble, so futile, so destitute of leadership, so lacking in self assurance that no political foe would dare present it."

"Of course it is not a true picture. Whoever continues to be President is willing to accept whatever his party can get away with—but he should have the courage to forsay as he did the debenture, with one blast."

On the subject of religious propaganda in the last campaign, Shouse said in part:

RELIGIOUS ISSUE.

"During the campaign the charge was made with substantial reason that the Republican National Committee was not countenancing if not actively fostering the introduction of the religious issue.

"It has remained for one of the principal spokesmen for the Republican party in Massachusetts, recent forth among religious groups particularly, to introduce direct reference to it. The Republican National Committee agreed to the attempt to encourage religious bigotry as a factor to elect its candidate.

"Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt has alleged in cold print over her own signature that speeches made by her to religious gatherings, the intent and effect of which were all too obvious, had been edited in advance of their delivery by accredited representatives of the Republican National Committee."

PRAISES FULLER

In an interview before the luncheon, he said:

"The Democratic party hasn't failed to make a fine principled presidential campaign in Massachusetts shows us that, especially since it has the great real test of Democratic influence."

Commenting on a rumor that former Governor Alvan T. Fuller was in sympathy with the Democratic party and a partial adherent to it, Mr. Shouse hoped that such affiliation was true.

"He is a powerful man. Current gossip in Washington has it that the Republican leaders in the Senate would rather not have him there," he said. "They know he has always been an independent and wouldn't play ball with them. They know he has a fine public principles and one of the most fearless men in politics in this part of the country."

Senator Walsh and Mr. Fuller, I believe, are the two outstanding political figures in Massachusetts.

Believe Ohio Man Fell From Liner

Cherbourg, France, Sept. 14 (AP)—Officers of the steamship Homeric, docking here today, said they believed the disappearance of Claude V. Marks, president of Ohio Steel Co. of Mansfield, O., last Monday had due to his falling and that he fell overboard and was drowned.

They said Marks seemed in the best of humor Monday afternoon, took a cocktail with friends and left for his cabin to dress for dinner. That was the last seen of him.

Hub Bank to Form $10,000,000 Trust

United States Trust Co. of Boston is to sponsor a new $10,000,000 investment trust. The name has not yet been decided. Offering of the shares is expected to be made next week. Officials of the United States Trust Co. will manage the new trust. The price of the shares will be fixed later.

The Curious Quizzer

Persons in the South End Answer His Question and Pose for Pictures

THE QUESTION

Do you believe that political speeches are as effective when broadcast by radio as when delivered at street corners?

MISS CELIA GERTZBERG, Tremont st.—I think better results in an appeal for votes by politicians are obtained by wireless broadcasting. The radio is heard by thousands who never attend meetings in the street. Unless the speaker is a master of elocution, people must stand long when passing a man speaking from a soap box or from a parked automobile in a public square. Radio listeners can hear talks in comfort in their homes and things said are more plainly heard than when listeners in a crowd are straining their ears to hear what the speaker is talking about.

JOHN J. DOONAN, Waltham st.—Half the eloquence of a good speaker perched on a soap box is lost when the same voice is heard with a lot of static over the radio. Furthermore, street corner oratory gives the crowd a chance to size up the speaker, whose personality is often judged when he appears and drives his arguments home by forceful gestures. When the same man is heard over the radio listeners miss much by not seeing the speaker in person.

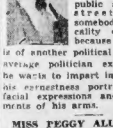
FREDDY O'CONNOR, Washington st.—The old-fashioned soap box is recognized as the proper place for political speeches. The radio can never thrill people the same as words spoken in your presence. It does not seem reasonable that a law forbids public speaking at street corners if somebody in the locality objects just because the speaker is of another political party. The average politician explains what he wants to impart in his talk by his expressions and by movements of his arms.



MISS PEGGY ALLEN, Massachusetts ave.—It is far better to see a person giving an address than to hear him talk by wireless. I believe that more votes are secured by street speaking than before the radio. People who never think of turning on the radio to hear anything about politics will stand for long periods, even in bad weather, to hear a man tell how he will be the best friend the people ever had to represent them—if they vote for him. Promises made by politicians are more often kept if they are made in the presence of somebody.

Discovering the Beauty of the Massachusetts Woods

By DONALD H. LEAMAN
Hyde Park, Mass.

Massachusetts presents a field for the interest of strangers and visitors its beautiful cities, attractive architecture, throbbing factories and progressive industries.

Parks and public gardens afford in a formal way an opportunity for all to enjoy the beauty of the native flowers. But to those to whom nature in its primitive form holds reverence and awe, the path that leads out of the city, away from the smoke and noise of factory, and past the artificial formality of the over-studied garden, and over-landscaped lawn, opens up a new world of rare beauty and interest so seldom recognized, but one of which Massachusetts might well be proud.

It requires no great effort or special study to enjoy the world of beauty that wild flowers of Massachusetts offer. Right at our very door the pathways that lead into the woods are strewn with flowers of rare beauty that await discovery and appreciation.

Autumn is passing and with the falling leaves and fading trees there appears in the withering grass, as if in defiance to the thought that nature shall die, the brilliant little dandelion, with its multitude of thin, golden petals. We see the goldenrod with its drooping yellow blossoms also reminding us of the fading summer, and the black-eyed susans dot the byways everywhere. The beautiful blue aster lends color to the fields, and the thistle with its many stickers, combining with the purple heather to make a finishing touch to the picture.

Why Boys and Girls Should Read the Editorials

By MADELINE GRIER,
Wakefield, Mass.

Although much can be said for learning "ologies," a thorough knowledge of public affairs is undoubtedly of as much value, if learned through right channels.

Editorials are written by men and women well versed in their subjects. Their information is acquired by reading several columns a day and by reading several columns may gain a general knowledge of the subject.

Time and space prohibit, however, but the public press brings to us many items of valuable information, especially through its editorials.

Sometimes it may be an editorial on a current event, containing facts and information sought to prove interesting to us. Again, it may be one on some other topic conveying the opinions and ideas of a brilliant journalist. In which case, it would stimulate the mind, even though it differed from our own opinions. In any event, whatever the theme, the newspaper editorials teach us the use of good English and are always an asset to the reader.

A Pioneer

MURRAY I. LINSKY
Roxbury, Mass.

A sudden zoom in the air—the shadow of a long, cigar-shaped silvery phantom propelled through space and the frantic scurrying for shelter of an uncivilized people, brought forth a laugh from this sophisticated world.

Or is it sophisticated? Just what knowledge this past expedition of the Graf Zeppelin has imparted can be safely classified as infinite? Has it opened up a new avenue of thought and imagination?

Is it not a pioneer, a forerunner of a new era of transportation, a new epoch in the history of the world?

Who can say? Who can foretell? Who can prophesy?

Only the future will tell.

Why Should Boys and Girls Read Newspaper Editorials?

By SELMA RIFKIN
Brookline, Mass.

Modern times have reached that point where all news in world affairs is of national and not local by but universally.

The young people of today have in this way had their field of interest broadened extensively so that the scope of the subjects about which they must become familiar is limitless. It may be that only genius and young prodigies can be extremely well read in many or all of these various topics, but the average boy or girl must know enough about world interests to recognize well known names and occurrences and to be somewhat informed concerning them.

There is absolutely no better way of accomplishing this than by reading well written, compact newspaper editorials. Here, in a few words, one finds comparison, discussion and explanation on all matters of current interest. Athletics, government finances, national laws and international disputes all find their way into the editorial columns in a manner that makes perhaps otherwise dry reading for boys become attractive and interesting.

Young people can read these editorials, understand them and gain enough information from them to feel at least somewhat acquainted with world events; they may feel a desire, after reading an editorial, for further investigation into a certain subject. Consequent formation of personal opinion whether one agrees or disagrees with the editor may help a great deal in exercising the growing mind.

The Relationship of Teacher and Pupil

By DOROTHY FAHEY
Malden, Mass.

Winner of $15 First Award

The attitude of boys and girls toward a popular and favorite teacher is usually one of genuine liking and wholesome respect. While they do not stand in open eyed awe and adoration, they never presume to address that teacher with the freedom and familiarity used toward companions of their own age.

A teacher cannot "hob nob" any more successfully than he can hold himself severely aloof. For while pupils resent the latter attitude, they are quick to take advantage of the former one.

A teacher is responsible for the education and behavior of his pupils, and, while he need not be the old fashioned schoolmaster-iceberg, he certainly cannot treat them as equals without serious damage to his power to rule them.

Most of us treat our companions with an admitted lack of consideration and respect and are quick to 'hand' the same treatment toward a person who does not demand the respect due to his position. Any teacher should be treated with the deference due a parent or any other mentor and not as an equal or a piece of classroom furniture.

Teacher and Pupil

By ELIZABETH MONAHAN
Saxonville, Mass

Winner of $10 Second Award

Understanding! What a marvelous gift the Gods bestowed on some people and how fortunate are they who are so blessed. Teachers who possess this wonderful gift do not hold themselves aloof from their pupils nor yet hob nob with them, but by their understanding find a happy medium.

The dignity of the teaching profession requires a high standard of its teachers and they in turn ask a high standard of their pupils. Respect, confidence, and esteem are readily given a teacher who understands. Worries and troubles of the pupils seem to vanish and fade away as if by magic, once they are brought to notice. Advice and help are always gladly given for the asking whether the problem is one of the home or school.

It is always a great source of satisfaction to learn of pupil's triumphs and successes. Who glories more in their achievements than their teachers, the ones who taught and understood them.

Why Should Boys and Girls Read Editorials?

By KATHLEEN LARSON
Allston, Mass.

All boys and girls are on a quest for education. In our country the advantages for a free education are unlimited. By means of its splendid school system, everything possible is done to encourage and assist American youth to reach the goal of success.

But there are other things besides text books which are held to educate. For instance, travel broadens the mind and gives first hand knowledge. We all are not in a position to travel, however, but Specially through its editorials.

Sometimes it may be an editorial on a current event, containing facts and information sought to prove interesting to us. Again, it may be one on some other topic conveying the opinions and ideas of a brilliant journalist. In which case, it would stimulate the mind, even though it differed from our own opinions. In any event, whatever the theme, the newspaper editorials teach us the use of good English and are always an asset to the reader.

Education

By NELDA SPEDIACCI
Lynn, Mass.

Doubtless to say, education is one of the most important factors in life. This country is the land of freedom, liberty, and opportunity. Consequently, women have the same chance as men to succeed. Education is at the base of success!

Schools and colleges are open to all; it is up to us to show our ambitions by fighting all obstacles that may deprive us of this education. Financially, it may mean a weighty sacrifice to enter college or another institution of learning. Nevertheless, those strugglers will reach their goal. Their standing in the community will be higher; their knowledge on varied subjects broader, and then, too, their returns will be greater.

Another factor obtained from education is that our country will progress even more rapidly than it is today—by good citizens. Are not good citizens made through the education they receive? Today, education is demanded!

Practically few little do we realize this) education is handed to us. Why, then, should we not benefit by this favorable offer? In this age, as far as education is concerned, we have no handicap whatsoever compared with the countless disadvantages of the past. Remember, "Opportunity knocks but once."

The Relationship of Teacher and Pupil

By DOROTHY SOROKA,
Lynn, Mass.

Someone once said, "What can give more joy than the exquisite task of a teacher unfolding the petals of a child's mind." The significance of this is almost sacred. It stresses the sublime relationship of teacher and pupil.

But there must be understanding and enthusiasm between them. There are pupils who are timid and incapable of readily grasping what is set before them. Without encouragement, they remain helplessly, afraid to utter their thoughts lest the teacher show contempt of their ignorance. They can never keep herself cold and aloof from her pupil; it will bring about the feelings that she was in realms where he is forbidden to tread. Such a schoolroom atmosphere creates only intense misery.

Without losing her gentle dignity, she must win over the heart of her pupil. It is up to the teacher to obtain his complete confidence in her. Only then will the pupil eagerly turn to her for guidance, and give the best that is in him.

The Need of Education

By SIDNEY ADELMAN
Somerville

In this era of science and progress education is absolutely essential to carry on the great work and accomplishments our fathers and forefathers have so firmly placed on a strong foundation.

The biggest of these accomplishments was the American school system, in which a parent places a child, illiterate, ignorant, and entirely upknowing of the wonders which exist in this world. At the end of ten or twelve years of schooling, under the guidance of intelligent and honorable teachers, they receive that same child a credit to themselves, country and fellow-men.

It is the educated children of today that will place this country on a much higher pedestal than any other country or race since the world began. Education has broadened their minds. It has enlightened them in science, literature and arts. It has bared a path that will not only lead them to contentment and happiness, but one that will give them a start as they go out in the world, showing something that is worth while.

Boys and girls, your time spent in school is valuable. Every minute counts. Time spent on education will be well repaid in your later life.

Education gives people a more thinking mind. It tends to destroy ignorant ideas and customs of years ago. It enables a man to know his fellow-men better and to create a feeling of kindness toward them. Education will build men as well as cities far superior to those of today, and will promote better ideas and living conditions all over the world.

The Relationship of Teacher and Pupil

By ETHEL MITCHELL
Dorchester, Mass.

Since our foundation necessary for school life depends almost entirely on the relationship existing between the teacher and the pupil. Only one word is really necessary to explain what is most needed, and that is "co-operation," the co-operation of teacher and pupil.

If a high minded, fun loving child comes to regard school as a very unpleasant place, the blame rests with the teacher. It should be remembered that the young child is very keen to first impressions, and that a child will immediately like or dislike you.

A teacher should throw himself whole-heartedly into his duty; mainly, that of preparing children of the 20th generation to accomplish their life work wisely and well. Realizing his great responsibility, the teacher should feel that it is of great importance that he first become friends with his pupils. When he knows that he has secured their friendship, three-fourths of the battle is won. Why? Because, naturally, the young pupil will come to admire and respect his teacher, and secretly hope "to grow up and be like Mr.——." Of course, some of the responsibility rests with the child himself.

I admire a teacher who can win a sullen, tearful child. Doubtless if a child can go to school with the feeling that he is going to spend that day with a friend, he will be able to respond more readily and recitations will be of greater interest. If, on the basis of friendship, rules are given and accepted, both teacher and pupil are co-operating, and establishing a firm and fundamental foundation of school-life.

Why Should Boys and Girls Read Newspaper Editorials?

By JAMES O'NEIL
Arlington, Mass.

The newspaper is commonly called "the voice of the people," but some papers are exceptionally so. The Boston Evening American" is one of these few organs. It is not only "the voice of the people," but also it expresses their sentiments more deeply than many other newspapers. Where it does this is in its editorials, and it is only one of the many reasons why boys and girls should read them.

The editorials of the "Boston Evening American" are exceptionally comprehensive, for they cover a large range of the world's interests and topics by imagine into the limelight national and world-wide affairs.

Since our national prosperity in the future is coming more and more to depend upon commerce with other countries, we should be well informed of the events vital to these countries with which we trade. We can admirably get essential knowledge by studying the editorials of this leading newspaper, whereas, we are not all blessed equally by Dame Fortune, and many of us cannot travel to where the world's events are taking place, we can read the most conclusive and accurate accounts of them very realistically in the "Boston Evening American."

Awards have been mailed to winners with the best wishes of the Contest Director, who also thanks the hundreds of other Boys and Girls whose editorials have made this competition so interesting to judge.

LATEST PARIS MODELS AT GOWN SHOW

The radical change in the silhouette in this fall's Paris Fashions has set many women wondering, "Will the new styles be becoming to me?"

This most important question received a satisfying answer many times during the Fashion Exposition of the Autumn Mode for 1929, held Thursday, Friday and today in the Chippendale Salon of E. T. Slattery Company.

Original Paris models from Patou, Chanel, Germaine Lecomte and other Paris couturieres were exhibited on live mannequins, with explanations and the story of the new mode told by Mrs. D. M. Barry, head of Slattery's Paris-New York Fashion Bureau.

Black is more prominent than ever and holds first place in the season's mode. Black ensembles of broadcloth and soft suede-like materials, lavishly trimmed with fur—black flat crepe or sheer crepe dresses for luncheon, bridge or tea, worn with the soft, dressy coat of cloth or fur. Gorgeous black evening gowns of net, chiffon or velvet, often fur-trimmed or with bugle beads as featured by Lanvin and Germaine Lecomte.

The return of the waist is significant of today's fashions. Many muffs play a double role—often the bag is hidden in its fold or flap—thereby doing away with an extra accessory, that is difficult to handle and easy to lose.

The hats are worn off the face and a little veil will soften the line if it is correctly chosen.

Gloves are again more than just a glove—each pair must be exactly correct for particular costume. For afternoon and evening the long formal glove is an essential part of the 1930 mode.

Shoes are plain or and match oftener than contrast.

In connection with the Fashion Exposition Mrs. Barr gave a fashion broadcast over WEEI.

The beautiful and original Paris gowns and accessories exhibited at the Exposition will be added to the extensive display of fall apparel which the Slattery Store has assembled for the new season.

Hoover Party Off for Weekend at Camp

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—A group of guests, including Senator McNary of Oregon, Secretary Lamont and William J. Donovan, former assistant attorney-general and one of the President's campaign advisers, has been invited by President Hoover to accompany him, today for a week-end at his lodge on the Rapidan river.

The President and Mrs. Hoover attended the speedboat regatta on the Potomac river early this afternoon and left for their mountain retreat immediately afterward.

Killed, 5 Hurt, as Engine Hits Auto

Peru, Ill., Sept. 14 (AP)—One man and two children were killed, a third child is dying and a mother of three children were injured today when a New York Central locomotive struck the auto in which they were riding.

The dead and injured were all residents of Magnolia, Ill.

The Weather

For Boston and Vicinity—Mostly cloudy probably with local thunderstorms this afternoon or tonight; Sunday fair and cooler; moderate southwest shifting to northwest winds.

For Southern New England—Local thunderstorms this afternoon or tonight; Sunday fair and cooler; moderate to fresh southwest and west winds.

For Northern New England—Showers this afternoon and tonight; cooler in New Hampshire and Vermont tonight; Sunday fair and cooler; moderate south shifting to west winds.

Maine Girls on Way to Springfield

Margaret Moody | Dorothy Johnston | Christine Jones | Athene Littlefield

Staff photo shows Mildred Brown, State leader, talking to the girls in the Maine party who will cook a dinner for Governor Gardiner of Maine at the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield. They are: Margaret Moody, Munroe, Me.; Dorothy Johnston, Goodrich, Me.; Christine Jones, Bayside, Me., and Athene Littlefield of Munroe, Me.

MAINE PARTY STOPS IN HUB

A group of 112 boy and girl farmers from Maine visited Boston today en route to the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield. The young people, accompanied by 12 chaperones, are making the trip at the expense of the Maine Department of Agriculture. They are agricultural club members who have done outstanding work during the past year.

The party stayed in Boston for two hours, spending the time in an inspection tour of the new North station and its auditorium.

The group proceeded to Greenfield by the Fitchburg road and thence to Springfield by special train. During the entire week of the exposition the Maine boys and girls will camp in a wooden building provided for their exclusive use.

They will witness demonstrations by delegations from other New England and North Atlantic states. They will also show the work which they have been doing in Maine.

State Club Leader Lester H. Shibles of the University of Maine and his assistant, Miss Mildred G. Brown, have charge of the group. A. L. T. Cummings of the Maine Chamber of Commerce and William G. Hunton, chairman of the state committee on agriculture accompany the boys and girls.

EDISON UP; BOSSES JOB

West Orange, N. J., Sept. 14 (AP)—From a convalescent's chair, Thomas A. Edison again today was directing his laboratory experiments to produce artificial rubber. The inventor for the first time since stricken ill a month ago with pneumonia, was permitted to sit up an entire day.

'Dead' Man Meets His Funeral Ship at Pier

Docking at the South Boston fish pier with flag at half mast for a member of the crew, believed drowned at sea, the fishing schooner Philip R. Manta was promptly boarded today by the supposed victim, alive and well—and anxious to get back to work.

He is Joseph Cutrow of Halifax. He left the ship in a dory Tuesday, setting trawls. A heavy bank of fog descended, and Cutrow could not be found. The mishap took place in the South Channel, 80 miles from Boston.

For two days and two nights the schooner, although laden with a full cargo of cod and haddock, cruised back and forth, seeking the missing fisherman.

Hope for Cutrow was at last abandoned and Capt. Irving Atkinson gave orders for the ship to make port.

Heavy-hearted, the missing man's shipmates tied up at the fish pier. Their lowered ensign informed other fishermen that the sea had again taken toll of human life.

Then from the wharf boomed the voice of Cutrow himself.

"Ahoy the Manta!" he shouted. "How's chances to help you unload some fish?"

The "dead" man explained that he had been picked up by another schooner Tuesday night and landed in Boston.

With 35,000 pounds of cargo to put ashore the Manta's crew hadn't time for sentiment.

"Get to work, Cutrow," ordered Skipper Atkinson.

NAVY POWDER HOUSE BURNS

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 14 (AP)—Nearly two and a half million rounds of small arms ammunition and a large quantity of powder were destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin, which broke out today at the St. Julien's Creek Naval ammunition depot about five miles from here.

The Norfolk Navy Yard and Craddock fire departments, which responds dto alarms from the ammunition depot centered their activities o nthe task of protecting building surrounding the one magazine storage shed in which the fire was.

Estimated loss of the ordnance material destroyed in the blaze is unofficially placed at between $25,000 and $250,000.

Authorities of the depot the ammunition and powder was condemned material and had been placed in the storage shed.

C. D. Parks, Hatter, Dead

Danbury, Conn., Sept. 14 (AP)—Charles D. Parks, president of the American Hatters & Furriers Corporation here, died at his home today.

Channel Swimmer Quits Near Goal

London, Sept. 14—Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, American swimmer, today abandoned her attempt to swim the English Channel within seven miles of her goal.

She had been in the water 21 hours when she decided to yield in favor of King Neptune.

Wants Byrd to Remember Poe

Editor Boston American:

Some time ago it was stated in the Boston Evening American that Commander Richard E. Byrd in the Antarctica was about to name some point in that region after Edgar Allan Poe.

Some of the admirers of this author in Boston seconded the request made by the Edgar Allan Poe Society of Manhattan to the commander. This is interesting to Bostonians as Poe was born in Boston. I suppose that more requests of this kind reach Commander Byrd then there are points to supply the demand. But I hope that Poe is not sidetracked in this matter. M. T. G.

Famous Bell Recast by Revere

Editor Boston American:

More than 1000 persons from all parts of the United States and a few from Canada have visited King's Chapel, Tremont st., in the past three months.

The bell hanging in the belfry of this church came from Londonderry, Ireland, and was brought over here in 1722. It was recast in 1816 by Paul Revere. It is pronounced one of the sweetest sounding bells in America today.

The architecture of this chapel, of the Georgian type, is among the most attractive in America for students. It is the best preserved structure of its kind in this country and will always be one of the attractive sights of Boston. M. M. D.

First Women's College Century Ago

Editor Boston American:

Is it not wonderful how the status of woman has changed in the last 10 years? It used to be said that a woman was unfitted for certain tasks in commercial life. Now she has shown herself fully competent to handle commercial matters and as for professional, she does that well, too.

Now what has led me to say all this is, that 103 years ago this month the first college for the higher education of woman was established at Macon, Ga. As far as I can learn no notice has been taken of this. I think that it ought to be noised abroad, for my grandmother attended it and had to stand much ridicule and abuse from the other sex for attempting to enter another sphere in life than that of the home.

Where Is Phonetic Spelling Taught?

Editor Boston American:

Is there any likelihood of changing the spelling of words in the English language?

Our present day spelling is a huge joke. It is claimed to give the derivation of words and their history, but it does not. Is there any institution in Boston that teaches phonetic spelling? I have asked several but receive no information. I am now appealing to your column. J. H. F.

Says Stop Feeding Granary Squirrels

Editor Boston American:

If pedestrians will stop serving left-over luncheons to the squirrels in the Granary Burying Ground, they will not gnaw at the root of trees. A hungry squirrel will tackle a piece of frankfurter and then get an abnormal hunger for roots of trees. Better, by far, to remove these tenants of the Granary Burying Ground to Thomas Park, Independence Park, South Boston, or even to Franklin Park.

But stop feeding sandwiches to Boston squirrels.

WATSON CHIDES DEMOCRATS ON TARIFF SHIFT

Washington, Sept. 14 (AP)—Anxious to avoid all possible delay in the consideration of the tariff bill, the Senate today dispensed with its usual Saturday holiday.

Thus far, two Democrats, Simmons of North Carolina, the minority leader of the finance committee, and Harrison of Mississippi, together with Brookhart of Iowa, a member of the independent Republican group that has allied itself with the Democrats in opposing the measure, have assailed the bill with denunciatory speeches.

Senator Watson of Indiana, Republican leader, last night made his first public utterance on the Senate committee bill in a radio address asserting it was safe to assume a measure would be passed very largely carrying out the ideas expressed by President Hoover.

Recalling that the Underwood-Simmons tariff act, placed practically all agricultural products on the free list, Watson declared that the "very men who foisted that policy on the country are the ones who are now demanding the highest possible rates for the same agricultural products."

He argued that protests from foreign governments were no cause for alarm.

Brookhart late yesterday told the Senate the measure fails to give the farmer the home market pledged to him in the Republican platform of the recent presidential campaign. He said the measure was not a Republican bill, but one for special privilege, which would force the farmer to sell his products in the competitive markets of the world.

Whisked to Hub to Vote

Sidney Rabinovitz. Roscoe Brinton.

Mr. Rabinovitz, general manager of the Economy Stores, was able to keep a date in Springfield, and also vote in the Crosscup-Pishon post election in Boston, when his friend, Brinton, whisked him from his office in Springfield to Boston to vote and back again to Springfield in time for his other date. (Staff photo.)

KEEPS 2 DATES BY AIRPLANE

Back at his Springfield office today, Sidney Rabinovitz, general manager and treasurer of the Economy grocery stores, had the confronting conviction that, thanks to modern air transportation facilities, he'd done a duty.

Rabinovitz faced a difficult problem when he discovered that he had conflicting dates for attendance at an Economy store opening at Springfield and an American Legion election at Boston.

A veteran member of the Crosscup Pishon Post, A. L. Rabinovitz hated to miss his opportunity to cast a ballot. He also felt obliged to be on hand for his company's big time at Springfield.

To the rescue came Roscoe Brinton, Springfield airport pilot, with the offer of the use of a nice new Challenger-Robin cabin plane. The big ship whisked Rabinovitz to Boston in less than an hour, waited while he taxied in town to register his vote at the legion election, then roared back with him to Springfield in ample time for the Economy store opening.

The 180 miles trip was made in less than two hours and aviation has a strong convert.

MODERN ADAM SEEKS AN 'EDEN'

St. John, N. B., Sept. 14 (AP)—Refused permission to try his experiment of back-to-Adam in the New Brunswick wilds, Burt M. McConnell, New York writer, today sought a temporary Eden elsewhere.

Mr. McConnell proposed to enter the woods without clothing, weapons, implements or supplies to test his theory that a modern civilized man can sustain himself under primitive conditions. He hopes to emerge from the woods in late November as well equipped as the American Indian at the discovery of this continent.

His plan was frustrated by refusal of the minister of lands and mines to give him permission to make the experiment.

Mrs. McConnell and other members of the party remained in St. John today, hoping to persuade the official to reconsider. In the meantime, Mr. McConnell went to Fredricton, planning to proceed either to Montreal or Boston. He said he was undecided where he would seek another wilderness.

Flaming Tanker Adrift in Sound

Linden, N. J., Sept. 14—Struck by lightning early today, the barge James Horan, containing 6000 barrels of crude oil and owned by the Lambert Transportation Company of New York, was drifting in Staten Island Sound today, a flaming mass and a menace to shipping. A New York fire boat was standing by.

The barge was struck at a dock. Alongside was tanker Cecil County, with 47,000 barrels of crude oil. Dock men saved it from burning by cutting the lines.

"Dieting the Bunk," Says Lila Damita

New York, Sept. 14 (INS)—"Eat heartily and be beautiful; dieting is the bunk," says Lili Damita, screen star who has just returned from Europe.

"I hear nothing but talk about 18-day diets wherever I go," she observed. "Bah not for me. To live well and happily, one must eat well. Good eating does far more to make women beautiful than fasting."

WATCH PLAYED POKER AS SHIP SANK WITH 70

San Francisco, Sept. 14 (AP)—Charles Tulee, first officer of the coastal steamer San Juan, which was rammed and sunk August 30 by the Standard Oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd off Pigeon Point, today took the witness stand in the trial of Capt. H. O. Bleumchen and Third Mate O. V. Saunders of the Dodd, and Third Mate Robert Pappenfuss of the San Juan.

The three officers, charged with negligence of duty in the crash that cost more than 70 lives, were on trial before the United States steamboat inspector here.

Tulee testified that any arrangement existed whereby the man on watch could change places with another sailor and go below and play cards.

Attorneys for the Standard Oil Company questioned him concerning the lookout. He said it was customary for the sailor to go below a few minutes before 12 o'clock midnight and call the next watch.

Tulee was scheduled to go on duty just as the collision occurred. Tulee could not say, however, whether the lookout was on duty when the collision occurred.

It had been testified previously that a poker game was in progress among crew members of the San Juan at the time of the collision.

Luther Leathers, quartermaster of the San Juan, testified he had been told members of the crew were playing poker and that a sailor who was supposed to have been on watch had sent a substitute to do his duty for him.

STAGE AND SCREEN

PROSPEROUS YEAR AHEAD FOR GUILD

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

NO gasping and aching patient is ever without hope until the relatives send for the family mortician. While a good many of the more astute doctors of the stage are showing signs of annoyance at the state of the drama—and are rushing into print with guaranteed remedies—no indication of worry or doubt shrouds the perfect calm of those earnest folk who look after the affairs of the Theater Guild.

THE spoken drama may be as sick as the specialists say, and probably is, but the symptoms must be wholly local if you take the operations of the Theater Guild for your guide. There is nothing whatever the matter with drama if you can sell it. And that, frankly, is the whole story of diagnosis and cure. The Theater Guild "upstarts" if you accept some folk, has taken the subject of dramatic production by the forelock and pulled it into good behavior. Taking a fair view of the problems of the theater, all any producer can expect is a profitable sale for the wares at hand. This the Theater Guild has succeeded in doing—good or not so good. At any rate a sensible selling plan has it influenced all its plans.

THE drama, like any other commodity, to be exploited. Overpowering announcements do not necessarily convince the potential buyer. The stage, naturally, is denied the privilege of scattering samples across doorsteps. But the Theater Guild does present the best example of intensive selling the drama has ever known. Its salesmen are not merely press agents, although this useful branch of the drama is utilized broadly and intelligently. The Guild, by its own means, finds a ready market long before any particular play reaches a community.

AS in the case of "Strange Interlude," the first of the Guild's demonstrations of good business at the Hollis, the playgoer has been advised to say, of all its peculiarities. An easy gesture, with a few newspaper announcements. You get a drama with your dinner—or, rather, on both sides of it. The performance starts at 5:30 and you absorb Eugene O'Neill's theory of the mysteries of life until 7:40. Then you take soup and fish, or melon and a roast, and sum up the time until 9 o'clock. The play then proceeds in regular order until 11 o'clock. A novelty to be sure in these exotic days, but not as new as you imagine.

WE once enjoyed "Parsival" in English on the same terms. Henry W. Savage was its sponsor. Most of us dallied so much over hors d'oeuvres and cocktails (wet days) that all the final tragedies were missed or not even understood. There'll be no such debacle with "Strange Interlude" on September 20. One may carry an extra cargo of clams, melon or salted peanuts, but he's bound to know what happens to the gold and the girl.

As New Season Grows More Music and Fluff and Girls Give Life to Rialto

EVELYN WILSON

AT LEAST ONE singing comedienne holds the center of the stage in George White's new dancing Scandals. You will discover this when you meet Miss Wilson at the Shubert on Monday night.

LEONARD CEELEY AND LAURA LEE

THIS WAY, PLEASE! Mr. Ceeley, heroic tenor of "Great Day," appears to enjoy the graceful attitude of a trained traffic cop. Miss Lee wonders what it is all about. (Colonial, Tuesday)

EDITH ARNOLD

PRIZE WINNING beauties do not always possess that eclat so noticable in Miss Arnold's interpretation of the Brooklyn girl who crashed the movies. It's in "Jarnegan" at the Wilbur.

Fascinating

MARY HAY

MISS HAY is a topliner at the Keith-Albee, appearing in a sketch with Bert Lytell.

Stage and Screen Star Vaudeville Topliner

Bert Lytell, once a stage star, then a screen hero, now headlining in vaudeville, is playing in person at the Keith-Albee, in a sketch called "The Valiant." For his leading lady Lytell has Mary Hay, former wife of Richard Barthelmess and dancing partner of Clifton Webb.

Although it is through his screen efforts that Bert Lytell is best known to the American public, there are many who saw him before the screen annexed his services in the legitimate theater. He was born in the latter, reared in it, represents the third generation of acting Lytells. In the traditional manner he made his earliest appearances in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," even as "Little Eva" in Uncle Tom's Cabin, and as other beloved children of the drama.

LOBSTER BIT HER RUNG TO NEW ROLE

LAURA LEE, the pint-sized comedienne, who will be seen in Vincent Youmans new musical production "Great Day" which makes its bow next Tuesday night at the Colonial for a two-week engagement, is a graduate of that famous temple of mirth known to the theatergoer of yesterday as the Winter Garden. She is just 22.

Vincent Youmans found her singing "The Lobster Crawl" in "Broadway Nights," a Shubert revue, which closed two weeks ago on Broadway. He immediately signed her to a long term contract and started the fireworks going with her appearance in "Great Day."

One of the outstanding talking points regarding Laura Lee is her decision regarding talking pictures, an art which she will forsake for some time to come despite many offers she has received from the biggest concerns. Her reason is as follows:

"There is too much confusion in the talkies now to even consider them. Some of the biggest stars have gone to Hollywood with big contracts, but you never see them on the screen. As a result they are lost in the rush. The talkies today are like the Alaska gold rush or the Oklahoma oil boom. I figure they are an overnight flash. An artist, if she will remain an artist, must remain on the stage where she or he can hear the roar of the crowd and the applause of the public. That inspires, and, although I love the glitter of gold, my work is better realized when I am on the legitimate stage."

Famous Actor's Son on Stage When Four

William Collier, Sr., famous actor of the legitimate stage, never let the necessity of attending school interfere with the dramatic education of his son, William Collier, Jr., the popular young actor who plays an important role in "The College Coquette," the all-talking picture now playing at the Modern and Beacon. Collier made his first appearance on the stage at the age of four years in one of his father's companies. From that time on he was seen in New York productions periodically.

Knows His King's English

CHARLES CROCKER-KING

'TIS SAID OF Mr. Crocker-King, eminent British actor appearing in "The Crooked Billet" at the Copley, that he is faultless in his command of the language. Knows his acting, too.

LONG HAIR IS O. K., BUT OH, YOU BOB!

"THERE is no need for the public to become alarmed over the fact that some girls are letting their hair grow, for people should realize that it would be a monotonous world if girls all looked like peas in a pod," declares Norma Shearer, one of the many stars in the "Hollywood Revue" at the Tremont.

"In place, I think the fashion trend, which is featuring individuality of style, is much more colorful than it was in the past seasons," she adds.

"As our hairdress adds more to our appearance than our hats, gowns or footwear, we should carefully study our features before deciding if we are the feminine or boyish type. For instance, Joan Crawford looks well with her sleek bob which seems to suit her personality, while I think the longer hair styles more becoming to me.

"By this I don't mean that I let my hair grow beyond the shoulder length for that is long enough to coil up in the back. An occasional trip to the barber keeps it at this length at which time I also have my hair thinned out. This makes it more convenient to arrange my hair either in a low coil at the nape of the neck or turned up to resemble a long bob.

"Some of the girls who are letting their hair grow find that an elastic band, held close to the head in back by two hairpins, keeps the hair in smooth arrangement when the ends are curled and pinned over the elastic."

"Woman's Crowning Glory" Is Star's Pride

If the bobbing shops and beauty tonsorial artists ever vote for a screen favorite it is not likely that Dolores Costello would receive much consideration, for the winsome Dolores wears her hair long and is not a regular patron of the barber shops. It is seen in all its unshorn glory in "Madonna of Avenue A," her latest all-talking screen feature which is showing for the first time in Boston at five Publix theaters—Scollay Sq., Fenway, Allston, Central Sq., Cambridge, and Strand, Dorchester, playing a full week at the Scollay and Fenway and four days at the other theaters, the Allston showing being Sunday to Wednesday inclusive.

In the strong cast with Miss Costello are Grant Withers, Louise Dresser, Otto Hoffman, Douglas Gerrard and Lee Moran.

COLONIAL—(Opening Tuesday) "Great Day," a musical comedy composed and directed by Vincent Youmans. In the cast are Mayo Methot, Walter C. Kelly (the Virginia Judge), Maude Eburne, Leonard Ceeley, Miller and Lyles and Laura Lee. Book by John Wells, William Carey Duncan and Anne Caldwell.

Captivating

JOBYNA RALSTON

"THE COLLEGE COQUETTE" is the vehicle for Miss Ralston, now at the Modern and Beacon.

Had But One Silk Gown in Homespun Days

Though the daughter of Grand Pre's richest farmer and leading citizen, Dolores Del Rio, in the title role of "Evangeline," picturization of Longfellow's poem, on the screen at Loew's State the coming week, had but one silk dress in her latest United Artists picture.

In Acadian days, every one wore homespuns because there were no silk mills in America, and so get dresses from England or France took months. Acadian women made their own clothes. Evangeline's one silk frock, a dainty, full-skirted affair in robin's egg blue with tiny pink roses embroidered on it, was worn to church services. The silk for this frock was bought by Miss Del Rio in France in 1827.

EACH ONE TO HIS OWN, IS WISE SAW

Photoplay.."Say It With Songs"
Type .....Musical Melodrama
Star .....Al Jolson
Theater....Uptown and Olympia

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

IT appears to be true that when Al Jolson says anything melodramatic with songs, you are all wet, so far as your eyes are concerned. Just because Mr. Jolson is a master of vocal melody, that Warner Bros. show at the Washington Street Olympia and Uptown is truly a knockout from the standpoint of popular appeal. It even knocks out the tears. We saw and heard—saw the tears and kerchiefs, and heard the sorrowing sounds of sympathy.

Some day we shall be tempted to let the audience write a review. Then, how the superlatives will leap from the dictionary leaves! "Say It With Songs," Mr. Jolson's latest vehicle, would bring adjectives clustering like swarming bees, to judge from what happened around us at the Olympia. And doubtless, since folks have a habit of doing similar things everywhere, it must have also happened at the Uptown the same way. He had 'em in the palms of his hands. He had 'em laughing, and he had 'em weeping. So what matters it if the story has its flaws as long as that go-getter partnership of Jolson & Lee (Davey of child prodigy reputation in filmland) is in our midst, with Davey adding a bit of real acting to the youngster stuff he does so cunningly!

Kenneth Thompson

THERE is Marion Nixon, too. When Eddie Dowling was here in connection with his "Rainbow Man," he told us she was the sweetest actress in Hollywood. We hear that Mr. Jolson also regards her as ideal for feminine leads. One thing we can say of her is that she now registers better than ever. Dowling film, showing she is making progress. She may be on her wagon to a star, after all.

• • •

MR. JOLSON gets his long chance to sing often, well, because he is here a air broadcaster. He even broadcast from prison, where he is in advance vile for having knocked a villain into the hereafter, but even entertains his fellow prisoners with song, to the accompaniment of a fine orchestra, unseen and somehow also within the confines of the calaboose. You will forgive everything for his singing of "Back in Your Own Back Yard," "Little Pal" (the tear-getter), "Just One Sweet Kiss," et cetera.

A GOOD actor, also, is Mr. Jolson. He makes it easy to get over the sudden shock of having an old-time sweetheart pushed into the plot without previous warning that any such animal existed; you pass over the hurdles of the unrealities, because it is so pleasant to let Mr. Jolson sway you as he will. Then the photography is good, and the direction for the most part excellent if you will ignore the flaws in the story. So the audience goes wildly Jolson. He says it so marvelously well with songs. And they say it so frankly with tear drops.

The Eyes Sure Have It Here

JOHNNY HARRON AND BETTY COMPSON

MISS COMPSON makes the "Street Girl" at the New B. F. Keith's a lassie after the heart of Mr. Harron, and right gladly he is responding to the easily detected love light in her eyes.

Still in the Ring

Richard Bennett in "Jarnegan" at the Wilbur (Third week). Indicating generally why nice little girls should stay away from Hollywood.

"The Crooked Billet" at the Copley (Third week). Spooky melodrama well stocked with crime and laughs.

"Follow Thru" at the Majestic (Third week). Melodious demonstration of what goes on in and about Country Clubs.

Hollywood Revue at the Tremont (Fourth week). The best of your screen favorites display talents in song and dance.

"Skidding" at the Plymouth (Fourth week). Playful comedy of family life in the home of an honest judge. The last week.

'Waltz Me Around Again, Willie'

GLENN TRYON AND MERNA KENNEDY

TRY AS HE will, Mr. Tryon appears to be having a hard time of it getting Miss Kennedy to deliver the kiss, in "Broadway," at the Park. But he knows that perseverance will win.

BESSIE LOVE AND MARIE DRESSLER
"NOW, WILL you be good? says Miss Dressler to Miss Love, in "Hollywood Revue," at the Tremont. Looks as if the youngster weren't taking it a bit seriously.

DOLORES COSTELLO
HER ROLE in "Madonna of Avenue A," at the Publix Big Five, gives Miss Costello opportunity to display her charms to perfection.

MARION NIXON, AL JOLSON AND DAVEY LEE
HERE'S A VERY happy family group of Mr. Jolson, Miss Nixon and Davey Lee in "Say It with Songs," at the Uptown and Washington st. Olympia.

EVELYN BRENT
IT TAKES baseball to win Miss Brent's affection in "Fast Company," at the Metropolitan. Cupid does the scoring.

DOLORES DEL RIO AND PAUL McALLISTER
NO LESS A TALE than the poet's "Evangeline" affords Miss Del Rio another big chance at Loew's State. Mr. McAllister has the role of Benedict Bellefontaine.

EDDIE CANTOR PROPOSED FOR ZIEGFELD FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 14—All the world and his wife have been wondering what Florenz Ziegfeld and Samuel Goldwyn would select for their first screen musical comedy. With such a wealth of Ziegfeld material to choose from, it must be difficult indeed to make a selection. One of our scouts in New York tells us that "Whoopee" will be the first and it will be done in Technicolor, with Evelyn Laye in the lead and Rudolph Friml writing the new score.

Samuel Goldwyn is now on his way to New York to consult with Ziegfeld about his first musical comedy and try to induce Eddie Cantor to come to Hollywood. Eddie has been under contract to Paramount for three years, but there is reason why he could not be borrowed if contract exists. It is difficult to make dates to suit the comedian's little days so much in demand the movies is part and made it such AILEEN PRINGLE'S blonde hair seems to have been lucky for her. Did anybody say anything about changing the color of one's locks to bring about good fortune? Changing one's name does it, but I never heard about changing the color of one's hair. At any rate, Aileen is now with the Columbia Studios, where she is playing the lead in "Wall Street" opposite Ralph Ince. For once in his life Ralph Ince is acting instead of directing. Usually he does both in the same picture. This time he has Roy Neil doing the directorial honors. Sam De Grasse and Ernest Hilliard are also in the cast. The story is by Paul Gangelin and Jack Kirkwood and the continuity and dialogue by Norman Houston.

ALL the Irishers on the Fox lot are brushing up on their Irish and getting ready to give Mr. John McCormack company right royal welcome. When the Irish tenor and his troup reach here in about a month he will have with him a company of Irish players, each one unknown to Hollywood and each one adding the Emerald Isle his ancestral home. The exteriors of the McCormack song talkie were all made in Ireland, but the interiors will be made in the good old U. S. A., namely in Fox lot in Hollywood.

Accompanying McCormack are not only his Irish company, but his technicians and Frank Borzage, sent abroad by the Fox Company to direct John's first talkie.

DENNIS KING gave everyone a little surprise at the Paramount Studios when he walked off the set. I could tell you there was some hustling and bustling around to pacify the star of "The Vagabond King," who had been brought to Hollywood at great expense from New York. It seems he and Ludwig Berger, the director, had some difficulties. Just what they were no one on the Paramount lot would say. Jesse Lasky and young King immediately went into a huddle to try and straighten matters out. King is too expensive a proposition to be idle long. Perhaps it is all settled by now.

DOES a fling at the stage help or hurt a movie actress? I should say it helps, judging by the way it has improved Jane Winton's technique. Miss Winton at first accepted an offer to play in the spoken drama because she thought it would help her voice. Now she is back in the movies playing one of the important parts in "Juries" at First National.

By the bye, Charles Kenyon's play, "Top O' the Hill" is due to go to New York this fall, and there is talk that Jeanne Eagels will play the leading role, although, as someone remarked, Miss Eagels is always reported in at least ten plays in which she never appears, so it may be all hearsay.

IT didn't take much imagination at the opening of the R. K. O. Theater to visualize one's self in New York attending a Ziegfeld "Follies" premiere. A lot of the old Zeigfeld favorites were on the program. There was cute little Ann Pennington, with bobbed hair acquired in Hollywood, doing a special dance number.

Then Bert Wheeler did one of his characteristic sketches and dances, and Fannie Brice sang. Fannie was at her best, even though the music did not completely suit her. It was a little slow in tempo.

Rudy Valles and his band, although not any part of a Ziegfeld show, made a sensational hit. Altogether, the vaudeville part of the "Street Girl premiere was one that had seldom been equalled in our town.

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: Norma Talmadge back on the United Artists lot making retakes. Marion Davies reading a sheaf of telegrams she has received every day since the opening of "Marianne." Kathlyn Williams complimenting Pola Negri on a suntan instead of her former pallor. Rudy Valles and little blonde cutie dancing together. Rudy getting a tremendous hand at the R. K. O. opening. Fannie Brice weeping when the orchestra failed to give her the proper accompaniment for her song. Mrs. Richard Barthelmers and Mrs. George Fitzmaurice lunching at the Ambassador Hotel, both smartly dressed for the occasion. That's all today. See you Monday.

TALKING JINX FOR GEORGE

BECAUSE superstitution still lives in the theater, George White, producer of "Scandals," which opens at the Shubert on next Monday evening, speaks of his stage success with trepidation. Whenever a producer gets a big hit, he knocks wood, appears shy, and tries to avoid any reference to it. And yet, this same George White has never had a flop show. He has had twelve hits in a row.

George White began his producing career in 1919, on the eve of an actors' strike when stars acrimoniously joined the fight either for or against unionization. That was the first edition of what is now known throughout the breadth of the land as George White's "Scandals." The extravaganza was an immediate success.

Producer White will talk about anything but his record. He believes that to talk about the matter will act as a jinx, and those on the inside of show business know the superstitions that envelop the flock. So George White remains reticent. He is content to produce, help write, stage, direct and sell tickets at the box office window, he says.

Backstage Cooking Is Girl's Suggestion

Home-cooked meals while you travel is the slogan which Irene Taylor, blues singer, appearing now at the Metropolitan in Boris Petroff's "Isle of Melody," practices.

"Ever since I left home and mother's cooking I've had so much trouble in restaurants and eating places," Miss Taylor explains, "that I finally decided to purchase a portable cooking set and do my own cooking. Naturally this at first led to difficulties with the management of the various hotels where I stopped. So instead of using my hotel room I come back stage."

By BERT BROCKLANK, Radio Editor.

WITH the appointment of Mrs. William Arms Fisher as Massachusetts chairman of the National Radio Audition, young vocalists in this section of the country are assured of another opportunity to sing their way to fame and fortune in the third contest, to be conducted this season by the Atwater Kent Foundation of Philadelphia. Auditions will be held in individual cities and towns for the selection of local winners, one boy and one girl. From among these will be chosen the state's contenders for territorial and national honors.

Mrs. Alfred Julian Rowse of Belmont has been appointed chairman for Boston and will arrange for a concert in which eligible singers in the Greater Boston area. This contest will take place Sunday, Sept. 29, in Brown Hall, New England Conservatory of Music. Names of other local chairmen who will arrange auditions in other centers, will be announced by Mrs. Fisher in the near future.

A THREE-YEAR schedule of broadcast music appreciation concerts for schools and colleges, under the direction of Walter Damrosch, was announced today by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company. The program is the most comprehensive series of an educational nature ever designed for radio broadcasting. From now on Mr. Damrosch intends to devote his entire time to radio work. The series will be known as the NBC Music Appreciation Hour and will be heard through more than 60 stations. The first program is scheduled for Friday morning, October 11, at 11 o'clock.

"This course is intended to supplement the musical instruction already given in schools," explains Mr. Damrosch. "Before radio became a part of school life, at least 90 per cent of our boys and girls had never heard any of the great musical works. If children hear a sufficient amount of fine music when they are young, they will not be content to live without it when they are older."

SANDY MacFARLANE has taken up golf again. This despite previous announcement that he abandoned the links after losing the ball he had played with for 13 years. At a Kiwanis Club get-together, this week the entertainment committee presented Sandy with a set of golf balls with the hope that he would resume the game. Sandy promised that so long as the Kiwanis were willing to furnish the balls he playing would suffer no suspension.

Arrangements are being made to put the Brockton Fair on the air for one-half hour each evening through station WEEI. It will be the first time that broadcasting has been attempted from the Fair grounds. Robert Burlen will make his headquarters in Brockton during the entire week of the fair and prepare a daily summary of events and features. There will be a stage opposite the grandstand to be used as a pickup studio for bands and musical organizations that will broadcast during the periods.

FRANCOIS VILLON, beloved poet rogue of the 15th Century, is the hero in the Lyric Feature that challenges feature for tonight's broadcast through WEEI at 8 o'clock. Henriette d'Orleans was a much-desired lady and when Louis XI ascended to the throne of her uncle, Charles VII, she needed a brave defender. Villon was always in hot ready. He was always in hot water. He preferred the coquillards of his time to the fashionables and was equally at home in either set. The beauty of his works, the chivalry of his soul and courage of his life will be brought out in this dramatization.

The Sorrento Serenaders, a nine-piece orchestra under the direction of Michael Zito, together with vocal soloists, will present a program of Italian folk songs during their broadcast from WNAC and stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System at 8 o'clock this evening. The program follows:

Lee Millions d'Arlecchio
Joseph De Vita, Tenor
Vocal duet—Joseph De Vita, Tenor
M. Ciuffo, tenor, and L. Urani, baritone
Tipica Polka
Instrumental Tenor solo: Maria Mari
Joseph De Vita

TULLY KNOWS HIS ONIONS

HE'S a business man as well as an author is Jim Tully, he of the vitriolic pen whose writings of Hollywood and its habitues have come into international vogue. A hard worker, he is described by his intimates as one of the shrewdest showmen on the coast.

Tully pays close heed to his financial returns. For instance, he can tell offhand just what receipts are being played to by his show, "Jarnegan," in which Richard Bennett appears at the Wilbur. He knows how much his novels are grossing in different sections of the country, and has at his fingers' end similar data which the average author professes to disdain.

Hollywood pretends to hate Tully, but strangely enough stars and directors care little about the "yes" interviews and fan magazine splurges. And how they are honored when Tully writes about them! It is interesting that even the most achieving fame Tully used to do stories about the movie folk for the fan magazines at $25 a piece. He did so many he often appeared in a dozen magazines under different names.

Mayflower Commodores to Open New Dance Hall

The Mayflower Commodores orchestra, famous for their radio broadcasting and their playing aboard the steamer Mayflower on the summer moonlight sailings, have secured No. 198 Huntington Avenue, formerly known as Blackwell Hall, for the place it is to be known as Mayflower Commodores Hall. Beginning Thursday evening, September 19, they will begin their fall and winter season of catering to dancers at this new home of theirs. Some dances will take place each weekday night.

The hall is being renovated in modernistic design. It will be under the personal supervision of Thomas J. Griffin, assistant general manager of the Nantasket Steamboat Company.

KEITH POLICY GOES BIG

"STREET GIRL," colossal of singing, talking, dancing classic which has attracted record crowds to the new B. F. Keith's is held over for a second week.

No doubt the popular price scale at Keith's has in large measure accounted for the instantaneous popularity of the new policy, with 30 cents being charged for the morning shows from 10 o'clock to one; 50 cents for the afternoon shows from one until six; 65 cents for the evening performances.

As during the first week of "Street Girl" and the Rudy Vallee feature, the performances at Keith's will be continuous daily from 10 a. m. while on Sundays the shows will start at 3 o'clock and continue until closing time.

Additions to Cast

First National-Vitaphone has added Allen Lane and Bert Moore to the cast of "The Forward Pass," featuring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Loretta Young.

TRY TO DANCE THIS OFF

"DANCING is the one perfect exercise," declares Merna Kennedy, who plays the role of "Billie," the chorus girl, opposite Glenn Tryon in the talking picture, "Broadway," produced by Carl Laemmle, Jr., and now at the Park. She warns parents, though, against too and mother used to leave the their dressing room with an old squeaky gramophone playing for music to dance by. When their act was over they sometimes found ma and papa asleep, lying down by myself out, but if they started the music again, I'd wake up and begin dancing."

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., Sept. 14—"Jimmy Johnston, the boy bandit of Broadway, tells me Phil Scott will plaster Victorio Campolo with a million or so left hands when they clash under the direction of Humbert J. Fugazy," said Mr. Boston today.

"Campolo has been taking sun baths up here and he says all he requires is one man's sized poke at the Englishman's chin to end the tussle.

The giant Campolo—and make no mistake, he's a real giant, standing six feet six inches in his shower bathed feet and weighing 235 pounds—contends that a China doll is tough compared with Scott's chin. The Argentine man mountain points to the way he socked honest Tom Heeney around as evidence of his blasting power

Jack Conway

"When I talked with Johnston on Broadway the other evening he didn't seem much concerned over Campolo's sock.

"The Campolo fellow has got to catch up with Phil before he can knock him cold,' said Jimmy. 'For three rounds I'm going to have Scott tap and grab. When the giant begins to get tired, Phil will open up and perhaps knock him all the way back to South America.'

"I shall then be ready to match Scott with the winner of the Sharkey-Loughran bout at Miami. Don't believe that stuff about Scott being signed for two more fights for Fugazy. My signature is only on the line for the Campolo whirl. After that match, I will try to get some dough from Bill Carey and his merry 600 millionaires.'

"AL LACY of Chelsea, who trains Sharkey, can speak seven languages: English, Jewish, French, Dutch, Italian, German and Lithuanian. Al picked up his knowledge of languages while touring the world with amateur boxers. Al made a couple of Olympic trips, while he also visited South America.

"TONY PALAZOLO, Sharkey's other trainer, speaks English, Italian, Spanish and French.

"SHARKEY speaks English, Lithuanian and French. And yet Johnny Buckley can make himself understood perfectly with only a knowledge of English.

"ARTHUR FLYNN has been giving Sharkey some stiff workouts. The early reports from here about Flynn suffering a wound under one of his eyes was the baloney. Arthur received a skin scrape, which healed inside of a day.

"FRANK BRUEN tells me that the advance sale for the Sharkey-Loughran bout has soared past the $125,000 mark. Bruen expects the gate will top $300,000.

"THE strong supporting card to the Sharkey-Loughran bout is the talk of New York. Ten round bouts featuring Jim Maloney against Armand Emanuel and Tom Heeney against George Hoffman are each good enough for a Garden feature. The preliminary card will cost $33,500.

"KEEP your eye on this fellow Tuffy Griffith who knocked out Dr. Ludwig Haymann at the opening show at the Garden. He is aggressive, a sweet in-fighter and can knock the opposition flat with either hand. He weighs 184 pounds and is five feet ten inches tall. He's Irish through and through and does not believe there is a heavyweight in the world he cannot beat.

"JOHNNY BUCKLEY has said right along that Griffith is the man Sharkey will have to beat to get a clear title to the world's heavyweight championship."

Red Sox Battle to Get Out of Cellar

CAPTAIN BARRETT AND HIS HARVARD HOSTS GATHER

Candidates for the Harvard, 1929, football team gathered at the locker building at Soldiers Field today to register for the squad. Here are some of the boys putting down their records for the files. Capt. Jim Barrett (right) had to wear this smile as he saw some of the fine-looking prospects from Eddie Casey's freshman team sign on the dotted lines. Uniforms were handed out today and the boys get down to hard work Monday. Looks like a big Harvard year.

WHITE SOX OPEN HERE TOMORROW

By JOE CASHMAN

NOTHING less than a clean sweep over the Chicago White Sox in the four-game series which will open with a double-header at Braves Field, tomorrow, will give the Red Sox a chance to get out of the cellar this year.

A second division club that wins 19 out of 35 games, as the Carrigan have done in the past month, usually goes up a rung or two in the standing, but it so happens that the natives aren't much nearer their seventh-pace rivals today than they were when they began their spurt.

Joe Cashman

It was their misfortune to have the White Sox start some what of a spurt at the same time. As a result, they haven't picked up more than two or three games in the past five weeks and must take four in a row from the invaders to have the slightest chance of getting out of the basement.

Not even a clean-sweep will lift them any but it will reduce the margin to almost nothing and would so inspire the athletes that they should have little trouble rising a notch before the season closes.

IT must be admitted that the odds against the natives winning all four games is very slim indeed. The odds are against a championship club making a clean sweep of any four-game series.

But the natives have been performing many miracles of late, and may come through.

Just now it doesn't look as though they would either get out of the cellar or hit the .400 mark but while they are struggling to succeed, they ought to at least better their 57-victory record of last season, which would be something to boast about.

THE Sox have been chronic tail-enders for longer than anybody cares to think about, but they have been showing improvement yearly since Carrigan took over the team and there is every reason to believe that Bill will eventually get them somewhere, if he can be persuaded to stay on the job.

He took over a club which had won but 45 games the previous season and led it to 51 victories his first season on the job. The next, which was last season, he added six to the victory total and promises to do better this season.

Not only that, but the Sox seem to have a better foundation for a winning team today than at any time since Harry Frazee started to wreck the great championship machine that Carrigan built up in 1915 and 1916.

If Bill can be persuaded to stick, which we understand is going to be a tough job for anybody who undertakes it, the outlook of the Hub having a real ball club in the not too distant future is decidedly rosy.

Horween in Hub for 4th Season at Harvard

By JOE MOONEY

ARNOLD HORWEEN, Harvard head coach, arrives today to begin his fourth season of coaching at Harvard.

He will go into conference immediately with Bill Bingham of the H. A. A. and will hold a meeting of all the varsity coaches some time before Monday at which meeting he will outline the chief features of the strategy to be used this year.

He is planning on getting a fast start on Monday morning in order to catch up with the other college teams which have been going through their paces since last week.

News comes from Bates, the first opponent on the 1929 schedule, that the Lewiston aggregation has been out for ten days and scrimmaging is already under way. A serious problem confronts Coach Dave Morey as he begins his first year with the Bates outfit. In addition to overcoming the obstacle of three discouraging seasons, he has less than a month to work an entirely green team into shape for the opening.

Dave has shown ability to work with small colleges, however. He coached at Alabama Polytech for two years and was four years at Middlebury during which time he produced a team which held Harvard to a 6 to 6 tie. Last year he was an assistant to Maj. Frank Cavanaugh at Fordham.

The New Hampshire team, which plays Harvard on October 12, has been out four days and Coach Bill Cowell has a fine small college squad at work.

Cowell has been at New Hampshire since 1915, has as his assistant Al Miller, former Harvard track and football star, who is drilling the Wildcat backfield.

BRAVES MEET REDS TODAY

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 14—With only 19 more games to play, the 1929 season slowly is closing for the Braves and unless a spurt is staged here against the Reds, the Tribe will stay buried deep in the cellar. It is recalled they staged a sensational spring spurt and were leading in the race, closing the first week in May, but the hitters couldn't hit, and the pitchers couldn't pitch.

The latest but-etin on the National League averages explains the downfall of the Braves this year. They are last in fielding, the same place in hitting, and could not be expected to reside any place but at the bottom in the pennant race.

Exeter Eleven to Play 7 Games

Exeter, N. H., Sept. 14—Following is Philips Exeter's football schedule for the coming season, all games not otherwise designated to be played here: Sept. 28, University of New Hampshire freshmen; Oct. 5 St. Anselm's Preparatory; 12, Harvard freshmen at Cambridge; 19, Yale freshmen; 26, Worcester Academy at Worcester; Nov. 2, Hebron Academy; 9, Andover.

Dilboy Plans for Last Outdoor Show

Several boxers from States outside of Massachusetts have entered for the Dilboy Post amateur boxing tournament to be held next Wednesday night at Dilboy Field, Somerville.

$100,000 RACE AT BELMONT

New York, Sept. 14—Although faced with the task of defeating two of the greatest juveniles of American turf, about a dozen two-year-olds are expected to answer the call that will send them forth, today in quest of the $100,000 awaiting the winner of the 40th running of the Futurity at Belmont Park.

Until a week ago it appeared as if the Futurity field would be the smallest in history with Harry Payne Whitney's great combination of Whichone and Boojum dominating the six and three-quarter furlongs dash down the Widener Chute.

But then came the Champagne stakes in which Wichone and Boojum were split by William Zeigler, Jr.'s Gone Away.

Jimmie Burke is expected to have a leg up on Boojum.

Green Eleven May Revert to Huddle

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 14—The Dartmouth team will revert to the huddle system again this year, after a season's return to the usual signal-calling process. This information was hinted at by coaches after a lengthy session, which was in fact the most intensive of the week.

Dorchester Team Wants Grid Games

Manager Brady of the Dorchester C. C. has booked a fast semi-pro schedule for the coming season. All the veterans of last season have returned. George Sherman and Donnelly, of Mechanics team of '28 have reported.

Games with the outstanding semi-pro teams in Massachusetts can be arranged. Columbia 8400 between 6 and 8 p. m.

St. Alphonsus to Have Football Team

The St. Alphonsus A. A., after an absence of two years are in return to the gridiron with a strong semi-pro team composed of high school and college stars from around Roxbury.

Tilden and Hunter in Net Title Final

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 14—Big Bill Tilden is favored to win his seventh national singles tennis crown when he meets Francis Hunter in the finals here today.

This marks the 10th time in 12 years that Tilden has survived to the final round of the national singles.

The veteran clearly showed the effects of the hard matches he has been forced to play all week, and it was only by calling into play every ounce of strength and every bit of skill that Tilden was able to overcome John Doeg, California star in the semifinal round.

Not until five sets were played did Tilden finally snatch victory by the scores of 4-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Hunter, Tilden's Dubles partner, and his opponent in the finals today, also had to fight hard to get into the finals. Fritz Mercur of Bethlehem, Pa., lost only after the hardest struggle. The scores were 6-4, 8-6, 6-4, 6-3.

C. M. Charest of Washington, a one-armed left-hand tennis player, eliminated H. H. Bassford of Scarsdale, N. Y., the defending champion, in the semifinals of the national veterans' singles championship 2-6, 6-2, 6-3.

In the other semifinal J. B. Adams, Jr., Dallas, Tex., defeated A. J. Cowie, New York, 6-3, 6-1. Competition is confined to men more than 45 years of age.

Jim Maloney in N. Y. Fight Tonight

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—Jimmy Maloney, Boston heavyweight contender, meets big Jim Griffith, Dallas, Tex., negro, in a 10-round bout in the opening card of the indoor season at the Olympia A. C. tonight.

OUIMET FETED AT WOODLAND

Francis Ouimet Woodland's leading exponent of the golfing game, although not a winner in the national amateur golf championship, was welcomed home by his club mates in a manner befitting a champion at the Woodland Country Club.

The smiling Woodlander, who surprised the golfing world by sweeping through the field only to lose to Jimmy Johnson, the champion, in the semifinal round.

Clancy, H. C. Captain, Hurt in Scrimmage

Worcester, Sept. 14—Capt. Stuart Clancy was injured in a scrimmage by the Holy Cross football squad when he was kicked while carrying the ball. Capt. Clancy was carried from the field to the dressing room, but at the conclusion of practice it was reported that the injury, a bad bruise, would not keep him out of the game long.

'Dumb Dora' Proves to Be Smart 'Little Girl'

Washington, Sept. 14—Dumb Dora, owned and driven by M. J. Haring, won the first race for stock runabouts of not more than 100 horsepower in the annual President's cup regatta on the Potomac.

Three other stock runabouts entered for the race failed to get away at the starting gun and Dumb Dora had the course to herself.

Dumb Dora's time for the five miles was 14 minutes and 43 seconds and the average speed 20.31 miles an hour.

8 Letter Men Out for N. U. Soccer Team

With eight letter men available, Coach Dave Priestley is confident of turning out another great soccer team at Northeastern. Herb Tiffany Northeastern's first three-sports athlete in history, is the chief scoring threat on the forward line. This New Bedford youth is a sharpshooter in any sport. His basketball record of 246 points last season is no more impressive than his soccer talent.

U. S. Senior Golfers Defeat Canadians

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 14—The United States senior golf team, competing against the Canadian team today, won the Duke of Devonshire trophy, 19 to 16. Fifteen veteran golfers represented each country.

By BILL McAULEY

THE New Bedford Whalers, with three former Hub stars, Tommy Blair, Tommy McMillan and Bobby Blair will oppose the Woodsies at Huntington Field, Brookline today, in an American League contest

The Woodsies have won four straight games and they are in hopes of making it five at the expense of the New Bedford eleven

The latter, however, will prove a formidable foe for they have been strengthened considerably by the signing on of Bobby Blair, Jerry Best and Jimmie McRorie since the Woodsies triumphed over them in the opening game of the season.

Blair is the stormy petrel of the soccer game and is easily the best drawing card among the players. Given his unconditional release by both Boston and Fall River, the ex-Helensburgh center has sure made good with New Bedford, and his record of 6 goals in three starts for the New Bedford club makes him a decided favorite among the fans.

The lineup of the Woodsies will be the same as that which proved so successful against Providence and Brooklyn twice and the New York Nationals. Against this trio they registered 13 goals and were scored upon twice, a record which indicates superb soccer.

The kickoff will take place at 3 p. m. and Archie Hart will be the referee with Jimmy Johnstone and Thompson Ritchie assisting him on the lines

A number of games are on the program for tomorrow with the Black Cats vs. Lusitania Recreation tilt at Blake Field featuring. This will be the initial appearance of the Black Cats, who hail from New Bedford

Fore River will entertain Woburn Tanners in an exhibition contest at Quincy, and these two state league rivals should furnish South Shore fans with an exciting contest.

The Boston & District League has four games scheduled for tomorrow, also Clan McGregor meets Lucy Rees second eleven at Woburn. Clan McLeod opposing Stoughton at Hyde Park, Portugese American vs. Beacon Oil at Cambridge field, and Swedish Americans vs. Charlestown Hibs at North Brighton.

GRID RULES TO BE RECODED

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 14 (AP)—Walter Okeson, commissioner of the Eastern Association for appointment of football officials, announced last night he would recommend that two rules in the football book be recoded and clarified. Okeson's announcement was made after flaws in the phrasing had been pointed out by Andy Kerr, Colgate coach; Gil Dobie of Cornell and Dean Watkeys, veteran Syracuse official

One suggested revision has to do with fumbled punts and the other covers fouls committed beyond the goal line by the offensive team. A literal interpretation of the rule governing the latter would give the offending team the benefit of the penalty.

In the first case if a punt receiver, after gaining full possession and control of the ball, should fumble, and the ball be caught before it hits the ground by a member of the other side, there is doubt whether the play should be dead at the point of recovery or interpreted according to the rule which governs kicked balls

Cubs Buy Coast Pitcher for $20,000

Los Angeles, Sept 14 (AP)—Officials of the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League announced that Augie Walsh, pitcher, who has won 17 games for the Angels this season, has been sold to the Chicago Cubs for $20,000. Walsh was purchased by the Angels last winter from the Philadelphia Nationals for $10,000.

Robby Denies He is to Lead Reds Next Year

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 14 (INS)—Rumors circulated here to the effect that Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Robins, would pilot the Reds in 1930, have been denied by both Robinson and C. J. McDiarmid, president of the Cincinnati club.

CALVIN COOLIDGE

WRITES THE STORY OF HIS LIFE

Sitting at the feet of the village smithy who was a "big-hearted" man . . . doing piecework in a factory on his vacation . . . having his "collegiate" long hair shorn when he took up the serious business of studying law—these are bits that barely suggest the absorbing, intimate heart story of a former President. The personal chronicles of a man who was ready for the Presidency from the time he became Clerk of Courts, until that memorable morning when, with his hand on his grandfather's Bible, he took the oath of office.

Calvin Coolidge's autobiography is peopled with remarkable characters. It contains some of the finest, most touching tributes ever penned. As a human document it should live. As the life story of a President it is immortal. Read this inspiring history of a barefoot country lad who became President.

Sharkey to Meet All Comers If He Defeats Loughran

HUB SAILOR READY TO FIGHT FOREIGN 'THREATS'; PAYS TRIBUTE TO ROOSEVELT

By JACK SHARKEY

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., Sept. 14—If I am successful in fighting my way to the heavyweight championship of the world, what little success I may achieve will be, in part, due to the help and the encouragement I have received from Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

Jack Sharkey

Five years ago Governor Roosevelt, who was then assistant Secretary of the Navy, started me on my career as a professional boxer. He made it possible for me to step from a position where I was getting $30 a month to one where I have received as much as $210,000 for a single bout.

Life in the navy gave me a strong body and a disciplined mind. I had done some boxing and was anxious to try my fortune in the professional ring. Governor Roosevelt as assistant Secretary of the Navy, always took a keen interest in wholesome sport.

He knew how much it meant for the boys in service. He took a personal interest in my case and recommended my honorable discharge so that I could devote more time to boxing.

[illegible] Tunney, a former marine, reached the [illegible] heights. As a former member of the navy, I am very anxious to reach the top. If I am successful, much of the credit will be due to Governor Roosevelt, for without his assistance, I could never have got started where. One of the chief reasons why some of the foreign boxers have been so successful in this country is because they have given strict attention to their training.

They have intense love for boxing and do not permit any outside attractions to take their minds off their profession.

Our American boxers have much more natural ability than the foreign ring stars. Most any American boy can defeat a foreign youth of his own age and weight. Fighting comes natural to Americans.

OF course, most of us, have a tendency at times to loaf on the job. We feel we have enough natural ability to win without bearing down in our training.

We cannot afford to do this any longer. American boxers must work hard in training. They must give all of their time to getting ready to meet the foreign Latin invasion. If they do this, they will triumph. I do not believe any foreign boxer can beat an American in a two-fisted fight if the American trains as hard as the invader.

I KNOW that Loughran, like myself, does not shirk in the training camp. This will mean that we both will be in the best possible condition when we breeze into action at the Yankee Stadium September 26.

I feel that I shall win. The promoters can then bring on any of the foreign threats. I shall try to live up to the high ideals which were instilled by Governor Roosevelt when he was assistant secretary of the navy.

Villa and Gonzales in Fall River Bout

Pancho Villa, of New Bedford, and Johnny Gonzales, Dan Carroll's new Mexican phenom, will meet in the 8-round feature bout at Fall River Monday night. Both are favorites in the Mill City and a capacity crowd should witness the opening show.

Young Lefty of Fall River and Tom Harper of Medford will meet in the semifinal, which is scheduled for six sessions. Young Dias and Joe Machado, Fall River rivals, will clash in another six-round event.

The other two preliminaries of six rounds duration will bring together Baldy Frodyma of Warren, R. I., and Johnny Donahue, of South Boston, and Kid Cuffe of Fall River and Eddie Daley of South Boston.

"TAKE THAT," SAYS TOM

Fine 'Prelim' Card to Graham-Martin Bout

A CARD of 48 rounds of boxing will support the feature bout between Bushy Graham of Utica, N. Y., world's bantamweight champion, and Andy Martin of Boston, New England featherweight champion, at the Boston Garden next Friday night.

To mark the opening of the fall boxing season in the Garden, an unusual list of bouts has been arranged which should satisfy the most critical, and the feature event is expected to provide plenty of thrills.

In the 10-round semifinal, Steve Smith of Bridgeport, who has met Kid Chocolate, Benny Bass and Honeyboy Finnegan in recent bouts, expects to punch his way into a main bout here when he meets Eddie "Newsboy" Curley of the West End.

Larry Brignolia of Cambridge, who knocked out Tommy Daley in his last bout, will clash with Victor Livan. The latter is the middleweight champion of Italy, who won easily from Tommy Smoot in his only Hub appearance.

In a six-rounder, Lou Bogash, iron man of the ring, faces Big Boy Burian of Westerly, R. I. Bogash insists that he can spot his opponent weight and win.

In another six-round bout Johnny Brisco of Beachmont will oppose Johnny Gonzales of Los Angeles in four-round bouts Sailor Flint of Boston, new heavyweight star, will meet Vic Baldwin of Charlestown; while Louis Nemis of Halifax opposes Francisco Santiago of Cuba.

Golf Tourney at Concord C. C. Today

The first round matches in the golf championship tournament of the Concord Country Club will be played today.

There are 16 first round matches and those beaten in this round will continue at match play in a consolation division.

There is also a second division in the championship play.

The finals in both the championship and consolation divisions will be played on Oct. 5, the championship affair to be a 36-hole match.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

The arms throughout the golf swing, keep fairly close together—just about as close as they are in the address. Therefore, at the top of your back swing your elbows are about as near each other as they were in the address. Now there is a vast difference between having the elbows in that position at the top of the back swing, and having them spread apart — especially the right one spread. Usually the right one does the major part of the spreading, though the left one, as I will show you, can be guilty of that fault. Naturally, you cannot bring your elbows into a correct position at the top if they have spread apart at the start of the back swing, so you position them correctly in the address, and the instant before you start your back swing, the idea of that being to make the elbows keep automatically to the right position. At the top of the back swing, thus, both your elbows point to the ground

THIRD GAME IN N. E. TITLE SERIES

By CHARLES HOFFMAN

THE third game of the series for the New England League title between Manchester and Lynn will be played at Manchester today

Steffin, in charge of the Blue Sox, will use his veteran left-hander, Bill Bailey, to try and win the third straight game, while Tom Whelan will depend on Joe Spear to get into the winning column.

The fourth game of the series will be played at Lynn tomorrow.

Right now, Manchester looks good to win four straight at the pace they are going.

Tom Whelan will use every strategy to make a come-back, and it would not be surprising to see some changes in his line-up.

Several times in the second game one hit would have meant victory for the Lynn club, but no one could get it.

3 FIGHT FOR B. U. SIGNAL POST

A three-cornered battle for the first string quarterback's berth on the Boston University eleven is being waged among Solly Thurman, Santo Marino, and Emile Palombo. There is little to choose among them and the final selection will probably not be made before the end of another week.

Marino is starting his second season as signal caller and is making a determined bid for the regular job. He is the smallest member of the squad but by no means the least conspicuous as he makes his presence felt and keeps the whole team on its toes when calling signals.

Thurman is a veteran halfback of three campaigns who is making his first attempt at directing the team. While a member of the backfield squad in the past, Thurman proved himself one of the biggest ground-gainers and if his shift to quarterback is to be permanent the other candidates must watch out.

Palombo is a new man to B. U. football, but he has a good high school record at Lynn Classical, and has held his own at Nickerson field for the past week and is bound to see considerable action this fall and may yet win a starting berth at either quarter or halfback.

Jack Clifford, who has been one of the leading candidates for right end, was shifted to halfback in yesterday's drill and will be given every opportunity to prove his worth as a ball carrier.

Another shift was the moving of Arnold Kahn from center to end. Kahn was a member of the squad as an end last year, and had aspirations of being center this fall. Joe Barrett's showing in recent drills at the snapper back post seems to be good enough to get him the position.

200-Lb. Tackle Joins Squad at Amherst

Amherst, Sept. 14—The Amherst College football squad was increased by the arrival of Bill Kirk, veteran 200-pound tackle, and this afternoon by the appearance of Al Krukowski, rated as one of the best end prospects, and Dick Ballou quarterback.

Howdie Groskloss, stellar halfback, was still missing, but is expected today.

The first injuries of the squad this season were reported by Harold Fangboner and Bob Horer both men being ordered to refrain from the heavy work

"CATCH GAMES"

Who Has the Whistle? will while away many a long evening. Someone who has been kicked in the head as a child is usually selected to kneel down, while in this position, opportunity is taken to pin a string to his coat or pants. Attached to the string is a police whistle. The "it" person is then informed that he must go in quest of the whistle which "is in the hands of a lady." Meanwhile the players form a circle, making believe to pass an imaginary whistle. The victim makes a dash for what he believes is the whistle, while the player behind his back blows the actual whistle. If the game is played cleverly, and care taken not to pull the cord, the Knight of the Whistle may often be kept dashing here and there for three or four hours. But the players must be very sly and nimble

TOMORROW'S fray between Roslindale and Quincy for the Twi League flag will probably be the last of the series since both Sid Paterson of Quincy and Fred Mellen of Roslindale feel that further contests would not meet with popular support.

The gate receipts in the series so far have been extremely poor, Wednesday night's game at Fore River netting but $500.

The gate receipts for the series to date total $3941.60. The first contest brought in $1046.60; the second, $709; the third $876; the fourth $691 and the fifth $510.

Thus far in the series, two games have been cancelled because of rain. Both of these postponed contests were supposed to go on at Rosmonde.

This afternoon's game will be played at Fore River Field, Quincy, and Ed Mullowney will be given a chance to hurl against the visitors.

Roslindale's pitching selection is John Shea, who worked against Quincy for the space of only one inning last week. Manager Mellen feels that Shea's long rest has benefited him and that the former B. C. ace will make base-hitting a lost art as far as Quincy is concerned.

"LITTLE CAESAR"

The Thrilling, Vivid STORY OF A RACKETEER

by W. R. BURNETT

Rico With His Gang Raids Arnie's .

What Has Happened Before

In the hold-up of a Chicago night club, Detective Capt. Jim Courtney is shot and killed by Rico, Sam Vettori's gangster lieutenant. Sam is furious, fearing that the consequences, but Rico, unafraid, calls Sam a coward and assumes his leadership. The gang gives Rico a banquet. When Tony Passa, losing his nerve, attempts to squeal about the hold-up, he is shot dead by Rico. The latter, broadening his field, forces "Little Arnie" to hand up a share of his gambling house profits. He also takes his sweetheart, Ginny Belle. She tells him Arnie is cheating on the split. Rico finds Joe Massara performing at a high-class night club with his girl, Olga Stassoff. Joe, fearing Tony's fate, is forced to fall in with Rico's underworld plans. Ginny Belle warns him to kill Arnie or get it himself.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER 31

THE Doc was a graduate doctor, but his license had been revoked, and everybody referred to him simply as "The Doc."

Rico took off his coat and shirt, and sat waiting. His wound had stopped bleeding.

Joe Massara came over and stood by his chair. Joe's big cut for an inside job had pulled him back to the fold. He never talked any more about quitting the racket. The Courtney affair had blown over apparently, and he had regained his confidence.

"Joe," said Rico, "how come they gave you the tip?"

"Well, I ain't sure, but I think it was an outsider that didn't know nobody but me. He sure had the dope all right. He said the guys were gonna park at twelve. They didn't expect you out till two or three."

A fine bunch of gunmen Arnie picked!

"Yeah" said Joe.

The Kid climbed off the table and stood feeling his chest.

"Boy, I thought I was plugged for sure."

"They just bounce off of you," said Pepi.

The Doc began to bathe Rico's wound.

"Ain't much," he said, "but it pays to be careful."

When The Doc had got Rico bandaged, Rico put on his shirt and sat smoking. Sat Carille and Ottavio Vettori, whom he had sent for, came in and sat down beside him. The Doc put on his hat.

"Well," he said, smiling at Rico, "I guess I'm done. If you guys have any trouble with them wounds let me know."

Rico got his billfold and gave The Doc a fifty.

"Thank you! Thank you!" said The Doc, bowing.

Joe Sansone let him out.

Rico said:

"Now, listen, you birds, tonight's the big clean-up. If these guys want trouble, why, that's just what we're looking for."

"You bet," said Killer Pepi.

"Now," Rico went on, "I got things fixed with Joe Pesper and I'm gonna to give Little Arnie the grand rush right away. I want Killer Pepi and Otero and Ottavio to go with me."

"How about me?" demanded Joe Sansone.

"You too, Joe, and you, Bat. I want you to take your gang and smash up Jew Mike's. Run everybody out and then smash the place. If Little Arnie wants trouble, why that's what we got the most of. Get it?"

"O. K." said Bat, "how about the fights?"

"Don't use 'em," said Rico; "Jew Mike's yellow and he won't put up no fight."

"Them guys of mine sure are hard in hold on to," said Carille, grinning.

"That's your job," said Rico, "We got to watch this plugging stuff with Flaherty on our trail."

"O. K., boss," said Carille.

When the doorman saw Rico get out of the automobile he stood standing then, pulling himself together, he made an attempt to run. But Pepi crossed the pavement in two strides, grabbed him by the collar and pushed him ahead of him up the stairs

"Listen, Mandame," said Pepi, "you tell the lookout we're O. K. or they'll bury you."

At the head of the stairs the doorman spoke to the lookout through the shutter.

"These birds are all right," he said.

The lookout opened the door and Pepi shoved a gun against him.

"Turn your back, Buddy," said Pepi, "and march straight ahead of me."

Rico, followed by Joe Sansone, Ottavio Vettori, and Otero, climbed the long flight of stairs and entered the lobby. The lobby was deserted except for two or three couples. Beyond it, through a big arched doorway, they could see the crowded roulette wheels. Rico caught up with Pepi and said to the doorman:

"Where's Joe Pesper?"

"The doorman had an agonized look. He was sure they were going to kill him. He just stood there, unable to force himself to speak.

"Say," said Pepi, "speak up."

The doorman pointed to a door.

"He's in with the boss, is he?" said Rico.

The doorman nodded.

"Yeah," said the look-out, eager to get in good, "Joe's in there with the boss and a couple of other guys."

"All right," said Rico, "now, Pepi, if the door's locked, do your stuff." Pepi could force the heaviest door with his shoulder.

Joe Sansone tried the door; it was locked.

"Now," said Rico, "Pepi'll force the door. You cover him, Joe, in case somebody in there gets nervous and pulls a gat. I'll follow you. Otero, you stay out here and don't let nobody in. You watch this pair of hard guys here. Ot-

"You don't have to watch us," said the doorman

They all laughed

"All right, Pepi," said Rico.

Pepi hunched his shoulders and flung himself against the door. It opened with a crash They saw four startled men rise half way out of their chairs and stand staring Joe Pesper cried

"It's Rico!"

Pepi was on his hands and knees in the middle of the room, but Joe Sansone stepped in behind him and covered the four men with his big automatic. Rico came in, took off his hat and bowed.

"Hello, Arnie," he said; "business?"

Little Arnie sat with his mouth slightly open. As a rule Little Arnie was impeturbable. He hid an excess of both cunning and timidity behind a cold, repellent, sallow mask. But this evening entry was too much for him. His mask had slipped, revealing a pale, terrified countenance.

"Well," he said, "what's the game?"

Joe Pesper, who was in Rico's pay, said:

"Pull up a chair, you guys."

Pepi found two chairs Joe Sansone and Rico sat down; Pepi stood behind Ricos chair.

Little Arnie turned to the two men sitting beside him. They were strangers to Rico and they looked tough.

"I don't know what this is all about," said Arnie, "but it's a private row, so you guys better beat it."

Rico said very quietly:

"Nobody's gonna leave this room."

One of the toughs shouted:

"Think not! Well, who the hell's gonna stop us."

Before Rico could reply, Joe Sansone said:

"Me, I'm gonna stop you, see! And I ain't gentle. I'm just itching to put some lead in a couple of hard guys."

"Yeah," said Rico, smiling, "you guys are invited to this private party."

The two men looked at Arnie, who sat tapping his desk with a pencil.

"Say, said one, "you sure got fine bunch of friends, Arnie."

"Yeah," said another.

Pepi laughed and said:

"Yeah, he sure has. Arnie, you ought to had better sense than to get a couple of outside yaps to bump Rico off."

Nobody said anything. Arnie took out a cigar and lit it. The two strangers sat looking at Rico. Pepi sat staring at them. Finally he asked:

"Where you guys from?"

The men looked uneasily at Arnie, who, busy with his cigar, was losing their nerve.

"Speak up," said Pepi, "where you guys from?"

"We're from Detroit," said one of the men.

"Where the hell's that?" Joe Sansone inquired. "I never heard of it."

"Say," said Pepi, "don't you know that tough guys like you oughtn't to be running around loose. No, sir. You're liable to get arrested for fixing a rod in the city limits."

"Listen," said one of the men from Detroit, "what you guys got against us." We ain't done nothing. We're just on in."

They were thoroughly intimidated

"Say," said Pepi, "speak up."

The doorman nodded.

"Yeah," said the look-out, eager to get in good, "Joe's in there with the boss and a couple of other guys."

"All right," said Rico, "now, Pepi, if the door's locked, do your stuff." Pepi could force the heaviest door with his shoulder.

Joe Sansone tried the door; it was locked.

"Now," said Rico, "Pepi'll force the door. You cover him, Joe, in case somebody in there gets nervous and pulls a gat. I'll follow you. Otero, you stay out here and don't let nobody in. You watch this pair of hard guys here. Ot-

"You don't have to watch us," said the doorman

"All right, Pepi," said Rico.

Pepi hunched his shoulders and flung himself against the door. It opened with a crash They saw four startled men rise half way out of their chairs and stand staring Joe Pesper cried

"It's Rico!"

Pepi was on his hands and knees in the middle of the room, but Joe Sansone stepped in behind him and covered the four men with his big automatic. Rico came in, took off his hat and bowed.

"Hello, Arnie," he said; "business?"

Little Arnie sat with his mouth slightly open. As a rule Little Arnie was impeturbable. He hid an excess of both cunning and timidity behind a cold, repellent, sallow mask. But this evening entry was too much for him. His mask had slipped, revealing a pale, terrified countenance.

"Well," he said, "what's the game?"

Joe Pesper, who was in Rico's pay, said:

"Pull up a chair, you guys."

Pepi found two chairs Joe Sansone and Rico sat down; Pepi stood behind Ricos chair.

Little Arnie turned to the two men sitting beside him. They were strangers to Rico and they looked tough.

"I don't know what this is all about," said Arnie, "but it's a private row, so you guys better beat it."

Rico said very quietly:

"Nobody's gonna leave this room."

One of the toughs shouted:

"Think not! Well, who the hell's gonna stop us."

Before Rico could reply, Joe Sansone said:

"Me, I'm gonna stop you, see! And I ain't gentle. I'm just itching to put some lead in a couple of hard guys."

"Yeah," said Rico, smiling, "you guys are invited to this private party."

The two men looked at Arnie, who sat tapping his desk with a pencil.

"Say, said one, "you sure got fine bunch of friends, Arnie."

"Yeah," said another.

Pepi laughed and said:

"Yeah, he sure has. Arnie, you ought to had better sense than to get a couple of outside yaps to bump Rico off."

Nobody said anything. Arnie took out a cigar and lit it. The two strangers sat looking at Rico. Pepi sat staring at them. Finally he asked:

"Where you guys from?"

The men looked uneasily at Arnie, who, busy with his cigar, were losing their nerve.

"Speak up," said Pepi, "where you guys from?"

"We're from Detroit," said one of the men.

"Where the hell's that?" Joe Sansone inquired. "I never heard of it."

"Say," said Pepi, "don't you know that tough guys like you oughtn't to be running around loose. No, sir. You're liable to get arrested for fixing a rod in the city limits."

"Listen," said one of the men from Detroit, "what you guys got against us." We ain't done nothing. We're just on in."

They were thoroughly intimidated

Easy

by BEATRICE BURTON

Author of "The HOLLYWOOD GIRL"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann Marie Macy is the "easy" type of girl who is occasionally imposed upon. Young and pretty, she dreams of a future as an artist. Her editor, Stephen Howdy, Alice and Jeanie, use her for their own ends. Her brother, Howard, borrows her savings. The art course plan is shelved when Ann Marie loses his money. Howard is awarded from an alliance with Leota Ingram, the town's bad girl. Even her modeling pendant fails to pay Howard's fare to the West when he loses his bank job. Neal Forsythe, dining Ann Marie, visiting the wealthy Lawlers, wins Ann Marie's heart. Neal is engaged to Alice, but Alice is not opposed to Ann Marie. Ann Marie goes on a Dutch-treat party with Neal, who forgets to return her change. Instead he steals a coffee pot for her from the roadhouse, returns to New York and Ann Marie begins to save to join him there. Howard, her brother, returns with a wife.

CHAPTER 24

ON the magazine-rack in the back parlor lay a magazine called "The Amateur Photegrapher."

Mr. Macy had brought it home from the store a few days before. And, looking through it, Ann Marie had come upon the announcement of a contest for amateur photographers.

She went into the parlor now, and took a long second look at it.

Then, with the magazine under her arm, she telephoned Howdy, who was helping his father at the store three blocks away.

"Can you get away for an hour or so?" she asked him. "If you can bring a roll of film for your camera and meet Stella and me in 15 minutes here at the house."

"Right-o!" said Howdy eagerly.

He was always glad to do anything with Stella.

She seemed to satisfy him in every way. He had taken all of his pictures of film stars down from the walls of his room since his marriage.

o o o

The day was warm and brilliant with sunshine.

Stella, in her gray hat and suit and slippers, looked as spring-like as the day itself, when she came downstairs a few minutes later.

"Now, tell me your money-making scheme," she said to Ann Marie, and Ann Marie unfolded the precious page she had torn from "The Amateur Photographer."

"We're going to try to win a thousand dollar prize," she explained solemnly. "That is, you are going to help me win it. It's a prize for a snapshot, and I am going to pose you against some willow trees out past the Country Club — and Howdy is going to take your picture."

Stella's face fell. "Oh, is that all?" she asked. "I thought you had something worth-while up your sleeve."

But when Howdy came home he was as full of enthusiasm as Ann Marie had been.

"That grand is ours already," he said firmly. "It doesn't matter whether I get my lights and shadows all right now—the kid's face would win any prize!"

He had taken to calling Stella "the kid" of late. But he still looked at her as if he were looking at an angel.

He took twelve pictures of her that afternoon when Ann Marie had posed her sitting on an old snakefence under a clump of willow trees.

Ann Marie made her take off her hat, and the sun made a shining crown of her wonderful hair and cast a shadow in the dimples in her cheek, deepening them. Stella had wonderful dimples.

"If we win the prize we'll split with you, Ann Marie," Stella promised the next afternoon when the enlarged snapshots had been packed up and sent to "The Amateur Photographer."

But Howard wouldn't hear of that.

"Gosh-a-mighty! Why should we split with Ann Marie?" he asked in his best cock-of-the-walk manner. "Nothing doing on that! You posed for the pictures and I took them! She didn't have anything to do with them!"

His wife fixed him with a bright and angry look.

"It was her idea!" she cried indignantly. "And she found the place and posed me!—It was her idea to call the best picture "Spring" on. Why, the whole thing was her idea! And she paid for the cab we hired for the trip—"

"Don't be silly, Stella," Ann Marie said, interrupting her quietly. "Howdy's right. The money belongs to you two, if you win it!"

Until that moment she had been planning to ask them for a hundred dollars of the thousand, leaving the rest to Stella for her $900 debt.

But now she knew she would never get a cent of it.

For a minute she was sorry she had let the other two in on it—and then she was ashamed of herself for being sorry!

"They need it more than I do—that money," she thought. "Poor things!"

o o o

Some people know how to be poor.

Some families know how to pick out cheap cuts of meat. How to save flour-sacks and make them into dish-towels. How to oil the soles of their winter shoes to make them last longer. How to scrimp and save and get along.

But the Macys never had known how to be poor.

Every year poor Mr. Macy had stopped into debt a little more deeply.

Every year the old brown house had lost a few more of its shingles and been a little more out of plumb. Every year there had been a few more darned places in the old-fashioned lace curtains, a few more worn spots in the body Brussels carpets, a few more cracks and chips in the china dishes.

But still the Macys had "held up their heads," as they called it. They had kept what Uncle Hamby referred to as their "stinking pride."

Jeanie and Alice had never even dreamed of going to work and earning a little money.

They had never thought of taking over the housework and letting Mr. Leesy find another job as somebody else's housekeeper.

Ann Marie alone had swallowed her pride and gone out, walking from house to house in the town, to look for work.

And now the time had come when she was going to pay for what she had done.

o o o

It was the first week in April, and still Mrs. Lawler had not given the engagement dinner that she had promised to give to Alice and Johnny.

But on the second morning in April the postman dropped three large, dull white envelopes into the Macy's mail box.

Ann Marie, coming in from her father's store at lunch time, saw them and fished them out. The mail box key had been lost for months and the family always had to fish in the box for their letters.

"Here are some invitations for you three," she said, carrying the three envelopes into the dining-room where Alice and Jeanie and Stella were at the table. "It's Mrs. Lawler's writing she seems to be planning a party."

She tossed them down upon the cloth and unfolded her napkin.

"Junior, but I had a good morning," she said, helping herself. Said that sort of November was had as long to old Mr. Mowery. And on the way home I stopped in at Culbertsons' and got an order from them for some hand-pain ed candle-shades. I heard they were going to have the house "Spring."

Alice shot her a cold and level glance. "I DO wish you'd stop going around from door to door, like an agent, taking orders!" she said sharply. "You're a disgrace to this family."

Ann Marie laughed at her. "You should worry about this family's disgrace, darling!" she said with great cheerfulness. "You'll soon be a Lawler!—And people aren't going to think I'm a disgrace just because I try to make some money. Everybody in this town knows me, and 'most everybody knows I'm saving up to go to New York and study art. Nobody's going to snub me for that!"

Alice raised her pencilled eyebrows. "You notice you didn't get one of these, didn't you?" she asked, shaking her envelope in her thin little fingers.

Stella had torn open her envelope, and now she began to read her invitation aloud:

"MRS. JOHN MONT LAWLER
MISS FLORENCE LAWLER
AT HOME
COUNTRY CLUB DRIVE
APRIL FIFTEENTH
FROM FOUR TO SIX."

"I never had an engraved invitation like that before in all my life!" she chirped. "Aren't they sweet to ask me—after Howdy threw Florence down and married me!"

Alice threw a pitying glance.

"They're not asking you because they want you there," she said flatly. "They're just asking you to show people that they don't care whether Howdy married you or not!"

"Oh — I see — " And all the bright happy look went out of Stella's face.

Alice could spoil anybody's happiness when she put her mind to it.

"And if you go to their party," she went on in her rasping family voice, "for pity's sake don't let everybody how you worked for your own living before you married Howdy!—Keep your mouth shut about wanting to marry into a nice family and about never getting an engraved invitation until you got this one! — If you don't, I'll tell them to the outside thing you know, just the way Ann Marie is!"

Ann Marie got up and left the table.

o o o

On the afternoon of the Lawler's party she stayed in the back of the store all afternoon, painting the Culbertsons' parchment candle-shades.

Toward five o'clock her father came back to her, his mild eyes a little troubled behind his horn-rimmed glasses. He teetered back and forth on his heels, his hands in his pockets, whistling under his breath in a thoughtful way.

"Aren't you going to that shindig at the Lawlers' today?" he asked gently after a minute or two

"Sems to me you ought to take the time for a little pleasure."

Until that moment Ann Marie had not realized how hurt she was over the invitation that had never come for her.

But now at the sound of his voice, her throat tightened and tears came, stinging their way into her eyes.

"I wasn't asked," she blurted out, done her best to seem indifferent.

And then all at once she turned to him and hid her wet eyes against the sleeve of his rough old coat.

"But I'm not crying because I wasn't asked," she wept, while his hand stroked her brown hair. "I'm crying because I would have been asked if—if Neal had told them he's engaged to me. Only he wouldn't—He was afraid to. I guess he's ashamed of me, too—" And she sobbed loudly like a small girl.

"What's this? What's this?" muttered her father, "you—you engaged? And who's the man, did you say?"

He had never know what was going on in his own family.

"Neal Forsythe. Mrs. Lawler's nephew." Ann Marie told him when she was calmed down. "I'm engaged to him, but he won't let me tell anyone about it."

"Hmm," mused Mr. Macy, "Hmm —won't let you tell anyone he's engaged to you, hmm?—Well, now I'll have to think this over. He doesn't sound like much of a man to me."

"He put her out of his arms, walked down to the front door and back again.

"What's he want to hide it for?" he asked sharply.

EVENING New York Stocks AMERICAN News of Street MARKETS

STOCKS RENEW ADVANCES IN WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—Stock prices moved irregularly higher at the opening of today's market. American Machine & Foundry advanced 3¼ points on the first sale. American Car and National Bellas Hess, National Cash Register, American Bosch Magneto, Simmons and American Power & Light moved up a point or more.

May Department Stores, which recorded an extreme gain of nearly 25 points yesterday, fell back 2¼. Bethleham Steel yielded 1¾ and Atchison 1.

While the market still showed signs of spottiness in early trading, the main trend was unmistakably upward with a selected group of railroad, equipment, public utility and automobile shares leading the advance. The sharp upturn late yesterday apparently encouraged a resumption of bond purchasing which checked the selling of small traders and investors.

American Machine & Foundry extended its gain to 8¾ points. Auburn Auto advanced 5¼, Stone & Webster and Timken Roller Bearing 5 each, U. S. Rubber 3 and Public Service of New Jersey, Commercial Solvents and John Manville 2 points or more. Pullman attained a new high record for the present stock.

Baltimore & Ohio, which is reported to have been heavily bought by the Cutten-Fisher interests, assumed the leadership of the railroad group by quickly moving up 2 points to a new high record at 145. St. Paul preferred and Frisco common each advanced more than 2 points and Seaboard Air Line preferred and Louisville & Nashville a point each. Missouri Pacific common was heavy.

Mack Trucks, United Corporation, U. S. Steel common, Underwood Elliott, Sears Roebuck and Gold Dust were among the many other issues in brisk demand.

Worthington Pump, which scored 19 points yesterday, fell back 4 on profit taking.

Air Reduction, General Electric, Commercial Investment Trust and Lamberg yielded a point or two and Foundation Co. eased fractionally to a new low at 35½.

DOLLAR TRADE VOLUME UP

The dollar volume of trade, as indicated by check payments, covering the week ended September 7, was considerably higher than in the corresponding period of 1928, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce.

Steel-plant activity showed a further recession but was still well above the level of last year. The production of bituminous coal during the latest reported week showed a gain over both the previous week and the same period of last year.

Crude petroleum production reached a further new high level during the week.

Cotton receipts into sight were substantially higher than a year ago.

Cattle receipts during the latest week were lower than last year, while receipts of hogs showed a gain. Distribution of commodities, as reflected by freight-car loadings, for the latest reported period, was greater than in the corresponding week of 1928.

The general index of wholesale prices showed a further recession from the previous week and was more than three per cent lower than in the same period of last year. Iron and steel prices and prices for copper and petroleum moved from the preceding week but showed a gain over the same week of a year ago.

Cotton prices were lower than in either the previous week or the corresponding period of 1928. Bank loans and discounts were larger than in either the previous week or the corresponding week of last year.

Steel Contracts Volume Increased

An increasing volume of business is being secured by the plant facilities and structural division of the North American Car Corporation, Stanley H. Brigham, president, announced today. Three contracts for steel work in Oklahoma have been secured. Constructing plants on these contracts will enable the company to keep its Coffeyville plant operating at normal capacity, Mr. Brigham said.

North American Car Corporation operates tank and refrigerator cars for handling liquid and perishable freight of every variety, and manufacturing vestibuled passenger cars at West Tulsa, Oklahoma, Coffeyville, Kan., and Blue Island, Ill. Common stock is traded on the Chicago Stock Exchange.

New Glass Plant Equipment Bought

Lynch Glass Machine Co. has just received an order from the Hazel-Atlas Glass Co. for the equipment of a new plant that is being opened in Oakland, Cal. T. C. Weeks, president of the Lynch Company, stated that Hazel-Atlas company has approximately 75 Lynch machines which are used in its various plants throughout the United States.

SUPERPOWER plant involving expenditure of $18,000,000 to $20,000,000 planned for Salem, Mass., by Charles H. Tenney & Co. of Boston.

CAR LOADINGS TRADE INDEX IS GOOD

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Mounting figures of car loadings indicates the "business peak" still lies ahead. Formerly car loadings were regarded by Harvard and other recognized economists as the most reliable index of general business, and a great many hold to them today. They do not give as intimate a picture, however, as they once did, because a mighty volume of traffic is moved by automotive vehicles. No good figures on these are as yet available.

Automotive freight traffic is of great importance in covering the entire country with its busy network. It is subject to the same sort of regulation in general as passenger car traffic, but enjoys in Massachusetts an advantage in insurance rates. When Frank A. Goodwin was registrar he pandicted separate roads would eventually have to be built for the "trucks."

Gerrit Fort, when vice-president of the Boston & Maine Railroad, was first to point out the necessity for the railroads to operate automotive vehicles, both for passenger and freight. Nearly all our railroads today conduct services of the sort.

Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway and Boston Elevated are examples of tractions successfully carrying passengers "on rubber." Their interurban and city lines are constantly increasing. Numerous street railways in New England and elsewhere have already abandoned the iron rails and become bus lines.

* * *

Speaking of freight loadings as an index, there is a great difference between the cars of today and those of yesterday. This makes comparison of gmit figures inaccurate, because today's freight cars are much larger than those of a few years ago. It will be recalled that the Boston & Maine was compelled to enlarge the Hoosac Tunnel to allow the passage of the larger freight cars.

Uniform regulations for all sorts of automotive traffic are sadly needed. Industry's demands differ from some eventual standard revisions. Even the position of drivers in the different states is not the same In Maine you get an operators license merely by applying for it, while, as most know, some sort of examination procedure is gone through in Massachusetts. In Oklahoma and some other states anyone can operate a car, no license at all being required. Thus a friend of mine from Oklahoma visited me recently in Boston, and explained that a traffic officer was amazed to find he had no operator's license.

He says one of the "sights" in Oklahoma for eastern tourists is to go to the largest car drives by George Indians, whose wealth pours into their pockets from oil leases.

Figures compiled by the sub-committee on parking of the Citizens Street Traffic Committee of New York, show that less than 1 per cent of approximately 140,000 customers in the retail shopping district on May 6 availed themselves of the privilege of parking their automobiles in front of these stores. Nearly 3 per cent came by chauffeur-driven automobiles and a somewhat smaller number by taxicab. The great majority, about 94 per cent, were classified as pedestrians. Included in this classification were all users of public transportation vehicles, except taxicab passengers, who were separately classified.

No one summering at seashore or inland water resort can fail to have noticed the tremendous new 1929 popularity of the outboard motor. This is now made evident in business reports. In his report to stockholders of Indian Motorcycle Co., President J. Russell Wait says the company has good possibilities depending upon concentration upon motorcycles and closely allied lines, particularly outboard motors.

BENDIX PLANS TO EXPAND OVERSEAS

Vincent Bendix, president of the Bendix Aviation Corp., has just left for Europe on the Majestic with Charles Marcus, president of the Eclipse Aviation Corp., and Wm. L. O'Neill, president of the Stromberg Carburetor Corp., where they will consolidate activities of the Bendix Aviation Corp. in Europe.

Mr. Bendix will establish subsidiary corporations in England, France and Germany for the manufacture of airplane parts, Bendix brakes and Stromberg carburetors for aviation use. In addition to this they will prepare for manufacture abroad of other Bendix products and other parts essential to aviation, which now are manufactured extensively for every airplane built in American Bendix Aviation Corp. This has for its subsidiaries Bendix Brake Corp., manufacturing automobile and aviation brakes; Stromberg Carburetor Corp., Scintilla Magneto Corp., Pioneer Instrument Co., Eclipse Machine Co., which produces Bendix drive and several electric units with an extensive business in Europe.

At present time 70 per cent of all motor cars manufactured in France now use Bendix drive which is an outstanding automobile starting mechanism of the world. These drives already are being built in France in a special factory. They are used extensively in England where Bendix drives are manufactured in Birmingham and marketed through the London office. There will be the first venture abroad of Stromberg carburetor which is used exclusively by all airplane manufacturers in the United States.

"Before I return to the United States, I expect we will either have in operation or in plant construction, factories in England, France and Germany," said Mr. Bendix. "Without doubt these plants will be extended to other countries in a short time, but the three I have named are the principal countries in manufacture of automobiles and aircraft in Europe. Mr. Marcus of the Eclipse Corporation and Mr. O'Neil of the Stromberg Corporation, who are going with me, will be in charge of foreign development for their companies."

have been a milk-fed fish and thus stronger than the others. At least such may be the case in the future. The Geneva City (Pa.) Creamery recently sold several lots of contaminated sour skim milk to fish hatcheries to be used in feeding game fish previous to sending them out for stocking streams, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, which maintains co-operative relations with this creamery for experimental work. The milk-fed trout or base may soon be on the select list of other milk-fed products like poultry, hog or veal, the department says.

No one in Boston knows just what the new ruling of the New York Stock Exchange on investment trusts organized by its members means. Of course, it is plain that the business conduct of the committee is to scrutinize them, and it is declared this will be done "carefully." Is it possible that such scrutiny would be other than "careful"? Yesterday it was done "carefully." Is it possible that other offerings than investment trusts are not subject to the same scrutiny? Are we, by this discrimination? Personally we do not believe there is any such discrimination, despite published "stories."

The ruling referred to follows: "In all cases where members of the Exchange are concerned publicly organizing and publicly offering investment trusts, investment trust, the committee on business conduct directs that the advertisement and circular and also copy of the charter and by-laws of the proposed corporation and any management or other similar contracts be submitted to the committee in duplicate prior to the date of offering."

Big Stock Exchange houses will soon announce more investment trust offerings.

Among our country's natural resources, generally speaking, coal is the least exploited of the: all, according to the United Business Service of Boston. For many years it has been known that vast reservoirs of this cheap fuel existed, but until recent years its commercial importance has been largely measured according to its availability to large consuming centers. The expense of piping the enormous deposits known to exist in remote areas of the South and Southwest to the large industrial centers of the East and Middle-West, has heretofore been almost prohibitive, but with the introduction of the expensive high pressure piping, the feasibility of marketing these remote supplies of gas has become a fact.

TRADE GAINS MORE THAN SEASONAL

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston: As the fall season develops, apparently more than seasonal increase in trade is noted. The volume of wool moved during the past week has been only moderate, though well-diversified as to [illegible] lines. Prices have been active, with a tendency on some lines to strengthen. Carpet wools are slow. Stocks of rugs are moderate, and all lines of floor coverings are selling well.

Reports on woolen mills are slow, and receipts are small. Some of the staple lines of cottons are quite active at prices averaging slightly higher. Stocks of cotton goods showed a decrease last month, with more orders on hand, but the trading mills still are curtailing, with the object of increasing their margin of profit.

SHOE CENTERS ACTIVE

The shoe centers all report an active business; in Lynn, manufacturers are, in some instances, unable to increase their production, due to lack of orders. Labor troubles in Haverhill have been settled, and all factories are busy. Brockton reported shipments for July of 32,276 cases, as compared with 27,380 cases last year.

Currently, production continues ata considerably higher rate than that of last year. The retail demand for high school shoes has been heavy. Leather prices have been advanced during the week, one to two cents a pound according to grade. Stocks of desirable leather are not so large as formerly. The hide market is quiet, and prices are steady. Tanning materials are dull, with few price changes.

Department store sales in Boston for the year ending in August, 1929, showed a gain of 9 per cent. over those of the previous 12 months.

In July the New England department stores showed a gain of 1 per cent over July sales of 1928. Sales of womenware, jewelry and women's and children's gloves showed marked increases, while the shrinkage in the sales of woolen, cotton and silk dress goods continued.

BUILDING PERMITS GAIN

Building contracts awarded in New England during the past week show a gain of 17 per cent. over the previous week, and above the average and considerably more than the number for the corresponding week in 1928, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation.

Permits issued in Boston during the past month are in excess of those for the corresponding month of last year.

There is a good demand for worsted goods, and manufacturing trades are fairly busy. Automobile sales continued to be well maintained, but the Labor Day holiday supply dealers have not had a successful season. The retail working trades continue active.

NET OF GREAT NORTHERN UP

President Ralph Bud of Great Northern says: "Gross increased about $8,700,000 for eight months and net about $4,250,000. These totals include back mail pay of some $1,500,000. The increase in net amounts to about $1.69 a share. Thus, if we hold our own the rest of the year Great Northern will earn close to $12 a share.

"However, crops in the Northwest this year were lighter than last. September usually is a good month, but undoubtedly the lighter harvest will decrease earnings toward end of year.

"Feature of the August showing is that the $1,000,000 increase in gross was handled at an increase in transportation expense of only $125,000. This is due in part to improvements in Cascade mountains and in part to gradual increase in size of locomotives and improvement in facilities for using them."

Mr. Budd said no dividend action is contemplated by directors, at least until December meeting. The agreement with Northern Pacific does not neither will pay more than 8 per cent until their merger application has been acted upon is still in force.

If the road's remarkable showing thus far can be maintained through the last quarter it will make the best earnings record in its history. In the year ended Dec. 31, 1928, net was $25,168,230 after charges equal to $10.10 a share on 2,940,946 shares.

WHERE TENDING?

A partial report of sermon titles to be preached tomorrow by clergymen in various parts of the city may or may not be an indication of the direction in which Protestantism is going in Greater Boston. The clergymen come fresh from vacation and their minds should be at their best and clearest.

SERMON TOPICS

Tomorrow sermon subjects: "Book of Romans," "Church Doctrines in Practical Light," "Getting Together," "Building the Church," "The Prophet Habakkuk," "Things Old and New," "All Things Are Possible," "The Bond of Fellowship," "Why I Believe in God," "The Pathway," "Worthwhileness of Religion," "A Pilgrimage of the Infinite," "The Interfering Christ," "The Partnership Divine," "Germany and Jerusalem."

CATHOLIC WELFARE

The National Catholic Welfare Conference in its latest bulletin from Washington emphasizes need for protection of women and children in industry. Miss Mary Anderson, of the woman's bureau, is quoted as saying: "Investigations of the women's bureau prove that hundreds and thousands of women in this country work more than an eight-hour day and 48-hour week; while thousands are still to be found with as much as a 10-hour day and 60-hour week." The bulletin goes on: "The Bishops' program points out that the large demand for goods which is created and maintained by high rates of wages and high purchasing power by the masses is the surest guarantee of a continuous and general operation of industrial establishments."

K. OF C. ELECTION

The annual election of officers of Cathedral Court No. 1, will be held Wednesday evening, September 18 in St. Rose hall, 17 Worcester st., Boston, at 8.30 p. m.

COURT SOUTH BOSTON NO. 837

Court South Boston, No. 837, Catholic Daughters of America, will conduct interesting bridge and whist party at Bernice Hall, Broadway, South Boston, on Thursday evening, Sept. 19, at 8:15 o'clock. Grand Regent Mrs. James T. McKinley has appointed as chairman Mrs. H. Patterson, who has a very enthusiastic committee.

PROSPECT HILL CHURCH

An opening of the church season will take place tomorrow at the Prospect Congational Church, Somerville. The Rev. Thomas B. Bitler will take for his topic—"The Bond of Fellowship."

CATHOLIC CHARITABLE BUREAU

"The cornerstone of an enduring nation must be cemented from the heartstones of its parents. Where engraved with the heartstones are ideals of home's sanctity, the perpetuity of of the marriage vow, and the unity that comes from Christian concepts of life and living."

WANTED—BAPTIST PASTORS

Seven of the most prominent Baptist churches in the country are now, or were very recently, searching for new ministers: Tremont Temple, Boston; First, Dayton, O.; First, Detroit, and First, Lansing, Mich.; First, Los Angeles; First, Kansas City, and Third, St. Louis, Mo. In every case the officials are demanding an "outstanding man."

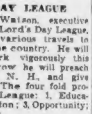
CHURCH GOING

Senator George F. Hoar is quoted in the Christian Register as saying: "There is in my judgment no more commanding public duty than attendance at church on a Sunday." The Register adds to this: "The declaration of Senator Hoar holds good for our time, also. Methods will come and methods will go, but the fundamental function of religion remains that of spiritual leadership."

LORD'S DAY LEAGUE

Dr. Robert Watson, executive secretary of the Lord's Day League, is back after various travels to many parts of the country. He will pursue his work vigorously this winter. Tomorrow he will preach at Manchester, N. H., and give what he calls "The four fold program" of the League: 1, Education; 2, Realization; 3, Opportunity; 4, Co-operation.

WINTER HILL BAPTIST



The Rev. H. Douglas Pierce, Somerville, will address his congregation on "Getting Together." In the evening he talks on "Church Doctrines in a Practical Light."

GRACE BAPTIST

At the Grace Baptist Church, Rev. H. D. Pierce Somerville, the Rev. William H. Dyas will preach on "Building a Church." In the evening he deals with the prophet Habakkuk. Dr. Dyas has spent part of his summer with the boys of Ocean Park Camp, Maine, teaching model ship building.

K. OF C. RETREAT

State officers of the Knights of Columbus are holding a retreat at St. Gabriel's monastery, which includes Friday, Saturday, and Sunday of this week. This retreat is the result of a vote by the state officials, and an invitation for such services by Fr. Andrews.

NEW RABBI

Rabbi Lawrence Schwartz, a young man who has come to take the place left vacant by Rabbi Wolk, will assist Rabbi Harry Levi this coming winter in the great work in Temple Israel and in the school for religious education.

WEST SOMERVILLE CONG'L

"Why I Believe in God"—The Rev. Daive Fraser of this church believes that a discussion of God at this time is very timely, when scientists and people of religion are coming together on some fundamental propositions.

FIRST BAPTIST, SOMERVILLE

Tomorrow evening E. Harvey Hadlock will give a talk on the Oberammergau Passion Play with screen pictures. At the morning service the Rev. William T. Murphy will preach on "All Things Are Possible Through Christ."

MALDEN CONGREGATIONAL

"The Value of Religion" will be the general theme about which the Rev. Roy L. Minich will preach tomorrow morning. Matters of religious education will be thrown back upon the individual churches this year in Malden, as much of the co-operative work along that line has been suspended because of the lack of funds and for other reasons.

TRINITY

The Rev. Henry K. Sherrill of Trinity Church will be in his place tomorrow morning. He continues as president of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, which has its first executive meeting of the year Tuesday noon. The Rev. Otis Rice, a young graduate of the Episcopal geminary, will take his place as assistant rector to Dr. Sherrill.

ST. MARK'S, BROOKLINE

President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University will preach tomorrow morning. The Rev. William R. Leslie, who has just returned from an extended trip to China and Japan, will resume his duties at once and be in his pulpit one week from tomorrow.

ORPHANAGE

A plea is made for the orphanage of "The Little Flower," located at 28 Bellflower st., Dorchester. There are in this institution 60 nuns taking care of 44 children. Needs are growing, and contributions over the week appreciated by the sisters whose responsibilities are considerable.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Substance" is the subject for the Lesson-Sermon tomorrow in all Christian Science churches. The golden text is "Thy name, O Lord, endureth for ever; and thy memorial, O Lord, throughout all generations."

CENTRAL SQ. BAPTIST

The Rev. William D. Geble of Cambridge has returned to his church at Central sq. His sermon tomorrow morning will be "The Call to Go Forward," and in the evening on "The Interfering Christ." Last spring Pastor Geble was married and received from his congregation a wedding present of $1200.

SOMERVILLE PRESBYTERIAN

The Rev. Wilson Aull, with his congregation, will assemble tomorrow in the new church building in Union sq. This will be the first service, following a series of successful union meetings in which the Somerville churches combined, for the summer.

MT. VERNON CHURCH

The Rev. Sidney Lovett of the Mt. Vernon Church, 6 Massachusetts ave., will return to his pulpit after a year's absence, spent largely in England at Oxford University.

ARLINGTON CONGREGATIONAL

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed at 10:45. The Rev. Edward Allen Morris will preach on "The Partnership Divine," and invites all who have no other preferences to worship with him.

DIVORCE INCREASING

Zion's Herald states, quoting from federal statistics: "There were 29,082 marriages performed in Massachusetts in 1928, a decrease of 1326 from 1927 total of 30,408. During 1928 there were 3646 divorces granted as compared with 3450 in 1927, an increase in the year of 187. The 1928 divorce total is an increase of about 50 per cent over the total of 1916 or 2258.

VILLAGE CONGREGATIONAL

Church services in the Village Congregational Church have been resumed. The minister, the Rev. George Hibbert Driver, will preach tomorrow on "Quenching the Springs." In the evening at the Christian Endeavor the topic will be "Putting God into the budget."

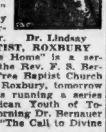
LITTLE FLOWER

The Thursday novena at St. Stephen's Church, the shrine of the "Little Flower" in Boston, will have as the preacher on Thursday, Sept. 19, the Rev. Daniel J. O'Leary, S. T. D., of the Immaculate Conception Church, Malden. The hours of the services are at 12:20 noon, 3:30, 5:20 and 7:45 p. m. Fr. O'Leary will preach at the 5:20 and 7:45 p. m. services.

COPLEY METHODIST

Sunday will be International Day at Copley Methodist Church, and in the morning Dr. Wm. L. Stidger will speak on "The Late Enemy, the Germans," using as a background for his address his travels in Germany this summer, and the new novel, "All Quiet on the Western Front." He will also discuss in this sermon the present status of the movement towards a United States of Europe. In the evening Rabbi Schwartz of Temple Israel has been invited by Rev. Guy Wayne to talk on the present situation in Jerusalem and the Jewish reactions. This is the first of a series of Sunday evening open discussions which Copley Methodist Church will inaugurate this Fall.

BROOKLINE BAPTIST



The Rev. Samuel M. Lindsay has returned to his charge with his genial smile and with his head full of sermons for the winter. His topic tomorrow morning is "A Pilgrimage of th's Infinite." Dr. Lindsay was in California all summer.

Dr. Lindsay

FREE BAPTIST, ROXBURY

"Seeing Nellie Home" is a sermon topic for the Rev. F. S. Bernauer, of the Free Baptist Church of Warren st., Roxbury, tomorrow evening. He is running a series on "The American Youth of Today." In the morning Dr. Bernauer will preach on "The Call to Divine Worship."

BAPTIST MINISTERS

An opening session of the Ministers' Monday Conference is called for next Monday morning. The Rev. George H. Baker, of the York City will deliver the address. Washington Heights Church, New York CiCty will deliver the address.

FIRST BAPTIST, MALDEN

Activities at the First Baptist Church, Malden, are now well under way for the year. The Rev. W. Quay Rosselle, D. D., will preach a series of sermons on the Book of Romans, and give the same kind of thorough treatment as he gave last season to "The Sermon on the Mount."

Act of the Great Spirit

A proposed heroic statue to be located on Moswetuset Mound, adjoining Wollaston boulevard, as an appropriate memorial to those who helped to bring our Commonwealth into being, has been modelled by the sculptor, Cyrus Dallin of Arlington. He has represented the chief, Chicatabut, listening to Governor Winthrop reading the conditions of a pact between the red men and the white settlers. The famous creator of "An Appeal to the Great Spirit" believes he has in this group another significant interpretation of the Indian character, and he naturally hopes it may be accepted by the tercentenary committee.

PILOT EDITOR EMPHASIZES RELIGION

"On Wednesday, the 4th of September, the National Law Enforcement Commission met to undertake one of the most comprehensive and exhaustive investigations of crime ever made by any country.

"The preliminary views expressed informally by some of the members of the commission have elicited mixed feelings of commendation and condemnation. Intimations were made, unfortunately, that religious training would prove a negligible element in the prevention of crime. This is manifestly contrary to experience, and it is to be hoped that the future study of the commission will dissipate this erroneous view. When the investigation of the commission is completed and thorough, it is incredible that religious training as a factor in ordering and regulating men's lives could be relegated to a position of comparative unimportance."

—Extract from leading editorial in the Catholic Pilot.

Federal Council Answers Shearer

The Federal Council bulletin, the first to be issued this fall, gives its editorial space to a comment of W. B. Shearer and his attack on the council last year by Mr. Shearer, who accused the churches of gaining support for their common efforts from Sir Henry Lunn, an Englishman. Shearer sent an open letter, which was printed in some of the daily papers of the country. The council bulletin characterizes the situation:

"Some real facts now come to light. The man who in his open letter was rehearsing the false statements about the Federal Council's income is recorded in the Baltimore Sun as suing three shipbuilding concerns for $250,000 for services rendered them at the Geneva conference and elsewhere; he admits that he received $51,230 from them."

FINE POINTS OF MODERN HOMES

By BERNICE BONNELL

WHAT a fascinating sight it is to fly over a city of homes and see the many contrasting colors and shapes in the shelttering rooftops. Today, we have come to rely on our roof as a means of absolute protection, but not often do we think of the many periods of slow evolution which have brought the roof to what it is today.

Betty Bonnell

When the world was young, ape-like ancestors of man used to stretch the skins of deer by suspending them from branches of trees and this rude shelter served as a roof over their heads. As time went on, man learned that skins, or bark, or thatching was too crude and it was then that he discovered metal.

Among the earliest of these metals which he familiarized himself with was copper which, when crudely rolled into sheets, became the forerunner of the copper roof of today.

Of course, what any home-owner wants in a roof is durability, as well as style and beauty, too. For permanence there is nothing to outlast copper and with it goes the added advantage of being fireproof.

As I see it, the first cost is the last, since there never arises any need for painting, repairing or renewing a copper roof. Once put on, it's there to stay, without danger of wear, rust or corrosion.

The worse enemy that your roof can have is the destructiveness of the outside elements which batter away at the resistance of your roof day after day, year after year. The natural qualities of copper make it strong enough to resist this enemy, and that applies equally as well to the accessory feature of the roof, such as gutters, flashings and downspouts.

If you want to pay for your roof just once, and forget about it after that, don't overlook the importance of copper for the roof itself, as well as for the flashings, gutters and downspouts.

LITERATURE on standard materials and products used in the construction of Modern Homes will be sent to you, if you will check the subjects that interest you and mail to the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

STORE SPACE IN LEASES

Leases of business property are reported by C. W. Whittier & Bro. as follows:

S. S. Pierce Realty Co. has leased the store and basement at 1346 Beacon st., in the Pierce building, Coolidge Corner, to the Old Corner Book Store, Inc., which, after alterations, will open book stores and circulating library.

Frederic S. Goodwin et al, trustees under the will of Bartholomew Scheerer, have leased the store at 4-5 South Market st. to Edward J. Sampson.

The Boston Real Estate Trust has leased to C. Pappas Co. the store, basement and second floor at 128-130 North st., together with the two-story building in the rear. C. Pappas Co. will use the premises for the storage and wholesaling of food stuffs.

Louis N. Price et al have leased to Teresa Martin the third floor in the building at 45-47 Wareham st.

Rapp-Hutchins Co., Inc., has leased to Maxwell Brown the store, basement and second floor in the building at 57-59 Haverhill st. for store fixture business.

Trustees under the will of Louville V. Niles have leased to the Massachusetts Elevator Co., Inc., the third floor in the building at 114 Broad st. The premises will be used as a machine shop.

"The real facts are that the Federal Council's income is derived from the free will offerings of the churches. Its budget for the year 1929 is $75,000. Of this amount $25,000 is contributed by the Methodist Episcopal Church, $10,000 by the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., $10,000 by the Northern Baptist Convention, $10,000 by the Congregational Christian churches, $5,000 by the Protestant Episcopal Church, $5,000 by the Reformed Church in America, $5,000 by the United Presbyterian Church, $5,000 by the Disciples of Christ, $5,000 by the Evangelical Synod of North America, $5,000 by the Reformed Church in the United States, $1,000 by the Evangelical Church, $1,000 by the Moravian Church, $1,000 by the Seventh Day Baptist Church, $1,000 by the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, $1,000 by the Friends, and $1,000 by the Church of the Brethren.
